

TEXTILES' COAL COST IS AIRED AT HEARING

Money Lost on Sales to Employees, NRA Board Is Told.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(P)—Cotton textile code authority officials, expressing fear if their petition were denied they would be forced to operate under a variety of codes, asked the NRA today to allow them to continue to sell coal to their employees.

Arranged against them in a public hearing were spokesmen for the retail coal code authority demanding that sales of coal by southern cotton textile manufacturers to their employees be made only in accordance with the terms of the fuel code. They denied they wished to stop such sales by the textile mills and denied they sought to set the prices at which such sales might be made.

Haitian Flag Is Raised Over Marine Barracks

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 6.—(P)—The United States flag which has flown for the last 19 years over the marine corps barracks at Cape Haitien, on the north coast of Haiti, was lowered today and the Haitian flag raised in its place.

Extreme good feeling was evident on the part of both the Haitian forces and the marines.

The Stars and Stripes were lowered by Lieutenant Colonel McClellan, of the marine corps.

Haiti will be concentrated at Port-Au-Prince and the final ceremonies of withdrawal will probably take place on the morning of August 15, when the sea-soldiers are to set sail for the United States.

CHILE WILL RECALL ENVOY TO PARAGUAY

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 6.—(P)—The Santiago correspondent of the newspaper Nacion reported today that the Chilean government has decided to instruct its minister to Paraguay, Enrique Gallardo Nieto, to return immediately, adding that this does not mean a diplomatic rupture between the two nations inasmuch as the Chilean legation in Asuncion will remain open.

The cause of the action was reported to be recent Paraguayan notes regarding Chilean neutrality in Paraguay's war with Bolivia.

secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina, said cotton manufacturers feared if they were forced to operate as the fuel dealers demanded, they would be forced to operate the various codes of their industry under "about 20 or 25" different codes. He mentioned, in particular, the trucking and electrical codes as covering fields affecting the southern cotton textile industry.

He presented figures showing that whereas the average cost of coal to the cotton mill in South Carolina in 1933 was $4.42, the average price for sales to employees was $5.29. The spread of 87 cents per ton, he said, was insufficient to cover the cost of delivery, handling and the clerical needs of handling the fuel by mill personnel, he said, causing the mills to make sales at a loss. He estimated the average sale price of retail coal dealers in South Carolina at $7.50 a ton.

Ira C. Cochran, counsel for the fuel code authority, denied his group sought to force the mills to suspend sales of coal to their employees, but insisted that they comply with code practices. He pointed out that under the fuel code provisions, most determination of setting retail prices for sales to mill employees lies in the hands of the mills, as retail coal dealers, as well as in the hands of the actual dealers themselves. Hendrick Brown, of Raleigh, N. C., and John Anderson, of Tampa, Fla., officials of the divisional retail solid fuel code authorities in their respective districts, supported his stand.

O. Max Gardner, former governor of North Carolina and counsel for the cotton textile institute, made a plea for the exemption. He claimed the construction of cotton mills outside of the cities in North and South Carolina in order to avoid taxes made it impossible for the local retail coal dealers to serve the mill workers without high transportation costs.

Both the raising of retail coal rates would have an adverse effect on the securities markets, and in the past such actions have been met with the cry of deflation.

ROOSEVELT MUST SEEK SUCCESSOR TO BLACK

Federal Reserve Governor Anxious to Return to Post in Atlanta.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(P)—President Roosevelt, returning to the capital this week, will face the task of choosing a new governor for the federal reserve board.

Governor Eugene R. Black, who has announced his intention of returning to his old post as governor of the Atlanta reserve bank, is anxious to leave and awaits only the naming of a successor.

This successor, if properly returned, will have the job of sitting on the lid of a banking system in which excess reserves are the largest on record. They are large enough to finance a tremendous credit inflation or boom if given the fillip of sufficient business profits. In view of what happened to the boom in 1929, observers would not envy the federal reserve head's task.

Should the depression deepen, he would be charged with guiding the reserve system's attitude toward possible support of the government bond market, with the nation's debt the highest in history and demands for heavier emergency spending inevitably tending toward new borrowings.

The reserve banks have increased their holdings of government securities nearly $400,000,000 in the past year. Reporting member banks' holdings have grown by $1,550,000,000 and it is believed the increase of other banks would add $500,000,000.

The nation apparently is far from a great boom based on credit expansion but, in the opinion of many observers, not far enough to be immune. Black, terming the huge excess reserves "high-powered credit," has consistently sought legislation that would curb unhealthy expansion automatically.

Congress Opposed.
At the last congress he asked that reserve requirements be based on velocity of deposit turnover, but congress decided otherwise.

Instead it gave the reserve board discretionary power to raise reserve requirements in an emergency. This agreed with the ideas of some administration economists who question the desirability of automatic control.

Many bankers who would like to see reserve requirements based on turnover velocity believe political considerations might hamper the exercise of purely discretionary authority in boom times. Curbing credit expansion, they point out, is always unwellcome.

The same criticism is directed at the authority's action in raising rates which critics assert, failed to curb the 1929 boom.

A third method open to the reserve banks is sale of their government bonds, but financial observers believe that to find a market for such large quantities might be difficult under some circumstances.

Both the raising of retail coal rates would have an adverse effect on the securities markets, and in the past such actions have been met with the cry of deflation.

Marlin, 17 Feet Long, Caught After Battle

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—(P)—A thrilling story of a battle with a marlin swordfish off South Shoal light was recounted by Captain Charles Peterson of the schooner Alpar and members of the crew when the schooner docked here today.

The fish was 17 feet long, from the tip of its tail to the point of its sword and weighed 800 pounds. It was harpooned by Captain Peterson off Nantucket Saturday. Two members of the crew in a dory were pulled over the sea in a fierce battle before the giant was vanquished.

Girl Found Slain, Filipino Is Held

HOLLISTER, Cal., Aug. 6.—(P)—The body of a young woman found brutally beaten beside a road near here yesterday was identified today as Alveretta Castor, a waitress in a Chinese restaurant in Salinas.

Police took C. A. Aquino, a Filipino labor contractor, into custody for questioning.

The identification was first made by Mrs. Tanaka, proprietor of the restaurant, who told authorities she had given the woman the braided belt which was on the body when it was discovered Sunday by James Doherty, San Juan farmer.

Later the identification was confirmed by Sheriff Carl H. Abbott, of Monterey county, who said he "possibly" knew the girl as Alveretta Castor. She was taken to the Monterey county hospital July 27, Abbott said, suffering from an overdose of narcotics.

Abbott said Aquino was the last person seen with the woman before her death. He said he understood she had been married to a Filipino labor contractor now in the Imperial valley.

Mrs. Oliver Morosco Sues for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(P)—Mrs. Oliver Morosco sued the internationally known theatrical producer for divorce today, asserting "one person could hope to hold him."

The former Helen McRuer, an actress, said Morosco had "as many faces as a crystal chandelier—each equally brilliant," and charged she was deserted July 6, 1933. They married November 21, 1929.

Mrs. Morosco stated that ever since her high school days the producer had been "a man of many faces" and her guide later when she left college to play a part in the production, "The Unchained Woman." This admission, Mrs. Morosco stated, developed into romance and she married him as soon as his divorce from his second wife became final.

A property settlement between the couple has been effected out of court, attorneys stated.

The suit was filed under the legal names of the two principals, Mrs. Helen McRuer Mitchell and Walter Mitchell. Morosco being a copyrighted assumed name.

Jews Asked to Unite Under New Ideals

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 6.—(P)—Addressing the fifteenth annual convention of the Southern Young Judea Association here, Leon Goldberg, of New Orleans, president, urged a group "to unite under the common platform of enlightenment and understanding of the high ideals of Jewish faith."

Goldberg declared prejudice had been directed against Jews in certain circumstances.

"We should stand to defend our Jewishness not because we are oppressed, but rather because of understanding and love of the high ideals of our faith and the valuable teaching to civilization. To meet this challenge, the Young Judea movement should be an all-Jewish youth movement," he said.

Two hundred delegates from several states are attending the meeting here.

TALMADGE TO DELIVER TWO ADDRESSES TODAY

East Point Club and Atlanta Kiwanis Club Will Hear Governor.

Governor Eugene Talmadge will speak briefly at a meeting of the East Point Club tonight in the East Point city auditorium, it was announced Monday.

A number of other prominent speakers, including Superior Court Judge Charles W. Worrell, of Cuthbert, will be in the program. The other speakers will include Judge A. C. Parham, Mayor E. D. Barrett, of College Park, and other Talmadge leaders.

Henry C. Davidson, president of the Fulton County Talmadge Club, said Monday that loudspeakers would be installed in the park about the auditorium to accommodate those who cannot get inside for the meeting.

Governor Talmadge will be the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club at 12:30 o'clock today at the Ansley hotel when he discusses "Agriculture in Georgia."

In addition to the governor, the members of the Fulton county board of commissioners, S. D. Traut, county farm agent, and 28 Fulton county boys who won 4-H Club prizes for pigs, white corn, potatoes, peanuts, soy beans and dairying, also will be present.

Dean S. Paden, chairman of the club's agriculture committee, will be in charge of the meeting.

Sixth ward supporters of Governor Talmadge will meet at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at 388 Will Street to organize the Sixth Ward Talmadge Club. Mr. Davidson and other officials of the county club are expected to assist in the organization.

NOTED CARTOONIST DIES IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(P)—Death has ended the long illness which afflicted Bery Levy, 63, noted cartoonist. He died last night.

Throughout the world he was famous for his caricatures in black and white and for 27 years he traveled over most of the vaudeville circuits in the world. Recently he had lived here, working in films as an illustrator.

His illness dated back a year ago, when he underwent an abdominal operation. Never fully recovered, he fell seriously ill 10 days ago.

FLORIDIAN ENDS LIFE

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 6.—(P)—The death of Joseph R. Hudson, 32, musician, who died in a hospital last night from a bullet wound in the head, was reported by police today as a suicide.

Mrs. Katherine Gordon, NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(P)—Death on a charity cot in Harlem hospital has ended the tragic fortunes of Mrs. Katherine Gordon, widow of Prince Rigo, the famous gypsy violinist.

She died yesterday from a complication of diseases, penniless and alone. She was admitted to the hospital recently as a charity patient. She was 55.

Owner, Gets Year at Farm, 6-Year Probation.

A jury in Fulton superior court after half an hour's deliberation Monday afternoon came out with a verdict of guilty in the first of 107 alleged gambling cases scheduled for hearing before Judge C. W. Worrell, of Cuthbert, presiding in the emergency criminal division. L. P. Smith, World War veteran, whose slot-machine case was the first of the heavy docket, was found guilty after an all-day trial, and sentenced to serve 12 months at the state farm on one count and a total of four years on the chain gang and two years in jail on four other counts, all except the state farm sentence to be served on probation.

Smith was charged with operation of pin-ball machines in several stores. Evidence introduced showed that winners of certain scores on the automatic-count machines received cigarettes as "prizes." The prosecution was conducted by Attorney-General John A. Boykin and Ed A. Stephens, assistant attorney-general.

In passing sentence on Smith, who, the court was informed, has on one former occasion pleaded guilty to a similar offense, Judge Worrell declared that "gambling must go, expressing the opinion that misdeemean-

Family of Five Faces Trial for Murder

WILKESBORO, N. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Five members of a farm family will go on trial in Wilkes county superior court here tomorrow on charges of murder and accessory to murder in the slaying of a 20-year-old girl, alleged to have been killed to prevent her revealing evidence connecting one of their number with another death.

The defendants in the strange court drama are Warwick W. Tilley, 60-year-old farmer; his wife, 53; their sons, Luther, 32, and Clyde, 18, and Luther's wife, Minerva, 30. Their alleged victim was Leoda Childress, foster-daughter of the elder Tilley.

A jury from Yadkin county will try the five. Anticipating difficulty in selecting a jury, the court summoned a special venire of 125 from the adjoining county.

The girl was found dead of rifle bullet in the Tilley home last December 30. A note produced by her foster parents said robbers were in the house and had threatened to kill her unless she revealed where Tilley kept his money.

Handwriting experts said the girl did not write the note and for a time officers held a theory of suicide.

It seems to be against public opinion to convict in such cases," Judge Worrell said, but added that he was doing what the court thought was best.

Smith's attorneys, Carpenter & Ellis, announced that an appeal will be taken, and certiorari bond was fixed at $1,000.

B. F. Crocker, who was jointly indicted with Smith, will go on trial today before Judge Worrell.

Soap-Box Boys To See Show; Macon Youngsters See Race

Two boys, Tom McArthur, left, and James Penn, of Macon, heard about the Soap-Box Derby, and were so enthusiastic about it that they came up from Macon to see it.

Finalists in the All-American soap box derby, which was run Saturday under the auspices of The Constitution and the Chevrolet Motor Company, will be entertained Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a free show at Loew's Grand theater, E. J. Melnick, the manager, announced Monday.

Boys who wish to bring their cars may park them without charge in Belle Isle's Garage, next door to the theater.

Virgil King, winner of the soap box race, and Joe Harrell Jr., Blue Flame winner, were two happy boys Monday. King will leave for Dayton Wednesday night to enter the national soap box derby, and Harrell will be taken there to enter by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Robert E. Martin, advertising manager, and W. L. Flemlister, manager of the boys' department of the George Mace Clothing Company, have arranged to outfit King for his Dayton trip. King, it was learned Monday, built his car with a cash outlay of only 35 cents.

Some of the other prizes consisted of a pool table given by the Brunswick-Balke-Collider Company, and a case of Lifebuoy soap by Lever Brothers.

These were first and second prizes in the handicap race between the winners of the soap box and blue flame races.

Thanks were extended Monday to John Smith, the Chevrolet dealer who supplied a wrecker, and to Miller Service, of Buckhead, for the same service. Also to Sam Greenberg & Company for an ambulance; to C. H. Matthews of the county police for policing the races; C. D. Crow, Constable, for his help in the race; and Ernest Nash and Rubin Caldwell, his colored helpers.

The race is the talk of the town, and the talk of the town is the adult as well as to the juvenile population of Atlanta than any recent man-sized event.

One boy from Decatur entered a car, and two from Macon, came up to see the event.

Winners in the race are asked to come to The Constitution and get their money.

TEXAS ATTORNEY SLAIN BY WIDOW

Financial Ills Believed Motive in Killing on San Antonio Street.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A murder complaint was filed today against Mrs. Gladys Rice, a 40-year-old widow, shortly after Ben H. Kelly, 64-year-old attorney, had died from pistol wounds received at a busy street intersection.

Police said they took a smoking pistol from her hand immediately after the shooting and quoted her as saying financial affairs led to the slaying. She said she was a seamstress.

Several eyewitnesses made statements to police. C. F. Hillman said he was the first to reach the wounded man's side. As the second shot tore into Kelly's chest, Hillman said, Kelly clutched his breast and exclaimed:

"Oh, my God!"

Charles M. Forsyth said he ran toward the woman to restrain her after the first shot, but she fired again before he reached her. Forsyth and Patrolman W. Cookerly reached the woman about the same time, the officers disarming her.

The woman was very calm, Forsyth said, and assured the officers she would not run. He quoted her as saying: "That's all right, you needn't hold me. I'll stay right here."

Mrs. Rice's calm was not shattered until informed at detective headquarters Kelly was dead. She then burst into tears.

Mrs. W. B. Stille said Mrs. Rice had lived at her home until about two months ago and had been trying to settle litigation over the estate of her mother and sister.

Detective Captain Aubrey Hopkins, who questioned Mrs. Rice, said she spoke of financial troubles lasting over a period of five years.

A moment after the shooting an unidentified woman dressed in white, stepped up to Mrs. Rice and struck her a stinging blow on the face. Persons near by seized the woman but released her when Mrs. Rice told them:

"Let her go—she doesn't know what this man has done to me."

The jurists hearing the case are Judge E. E. Tamm, J. D. Thomas, and Judge Virgil B. Moore.

Most of Monday's session was given over to the reading of the commission's pleadings in which it denied the company's allegations that the rate is confiscatory, was arrived at after an unfair hearing and that the commission members were under duress from Governor Tamm when they ordered the lowered schedule of rates.

E. K. Wilcox and T. G. Connell, of Augusta, are representing the utility, while the commission is being represented by Assistant Attorneys-General John T. Goree and B. D. Murphy.

HOME OF AMERICAN IS BOMBED IN CUBA

HAVANA, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A bomb exploded today in the home of R. Marsden Leeder, an American attorney recently accused by supporters of former President Grau San Martin of being implicated in an alleged attempt to defraud the Cuban government through the manipulation of titles on lumber properties once owned by former President Gerardo Machado.

Although the bomb destroyed the front part of the house and police said it must have weighed 50 pounds and was one of the largest ever exploded in Havana, no one was injured.

Thief Pleads Guilty.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Cecil Irons, 34, of Elkland, Pa., charged with the theft of $22,462 worth of jewels from Mrs. Robert G. Cabell, of Richmond, entered a plea of guilty in Hastings court today.

He was brought here for trial after being released last Tuesday from the Louisiana penitentiary where he had been serving a 10-year sentence.

MOLE SALAMANDERS.
The mole salamanders, so named from their burrowing lives during the greater part of the year, have figured in this column once before in short sketches. I want to include them again, however, for the sake of completeness in the present outline.

There are four species found in Georgia, of which I have first-hand information on two. I know the other two on sight, but so far, one, the tiger salamander, has eluded my search, and the other, the coastal mole salamander, inhabits a region where I have not yet collected.

The two that I mention here, therefore, are those most likely to be found in the region of fact. In fact, I have personally taken them in every one of the adjoining counties to Fulton. First we will name the marbled salamander.

Imagine a salamander about four to five inches in length, slaty black in color, with cross-bars of gray or pure white on the body and tail. The head is broad and flattened. The eyes are prominent. There! You have imagined the marbled salamander. The male is darker or more shiny black and the cross bars are whiter than the corresponding colors of the female.

Our other common mole salamander is the spotted salamander, but that names gives no accurate picture of the species at all. The body color of this species is black, as in the marbled salamander, but the contrasting colors are disposed down each side of the back from the head in a single row of spots. Now, on the head these spots are bright, but on the body they are commonly a series of such spots on the legs also, but they are proportionately reduced in size. This animal is longer and thinner in outline than the marbled salamander. It evidently can tolerate highly polluted water, for I have two specimens from the tanks at the Peachtree creek sewage station.

These two species both go down to the pools to breed in the late spring after the rains have soaked the ground thoroughly. They make their appearance at about the same time that our first frog, the swamp cricket-frog, appears, which may be from late February on into late February or early March. I have seen them breeding in the same pools with these small frogs. Their eggs are enclosed in large gelatinous masses, and there is a symbiotic (or harmless) alga that develops in the eggs, giving them a delicate green color. I have often dipped up these egg masses from the bottoms of ponds in early spring and brought off a brood of young salamanders.

Book Written in 1899 by Minister
Next to Bible as U. S. Best Seller

By RALPH T. JONES.
What book, published within the last 50 years, has sold more copies in America than any other, except the Bible? What book is so far ahead of the one in second place that its popular supremacy is beyond question? That has, as a matter of fact, sold four copies for every one of its nearest competitor can boast?

The answer is "In His Steps," which was written by Charles M. Sheldon, a Kansas clergyman, and since it was first published in 1899 has sold 8,000,000 copies.

Second place in book sales goes to Gene Stratton Porter's "Freckles," with 2,000,000 copies, and third place to Lew Wallace's "Ben Hur," with 1,950,000 copies.

These figures are taken from the 1934-1935 Motion Picture Almanac, just from the press, which gives tabulated lists of the most successful books, songs, pictures, screen stars and plays.

Before leaving the book list, let me state that Gene Stratton Porter has three among the first five best sellers of all time—the other two are "The Girl of the Limberlost," 1,700,000 copies sold, and "The Harvester," 1,600,000. And the same author's "Laddie" comes in eighth place with 1,500,000.

Power Rate Cut Case Heard by Three Judges

A three-judge Fulton superior court Monday took up the application of the Georgia Power & Light Company for an injunction against a 17 per cent rate cut ordered by the public service commission after the three largest cities served by the company, Valdosta, Waycross and Bainbridge, joined the commission in defending the litigation.

The jurists hearing the case are Judge E. E. Tamm, J. D. Thomas, and Judge Virgil B. Moore.

Most of Monday's session was given over to the reading of the commission's pleadings in which it denied the company's allegations that the rate is confiscatory, was arrived at after an unfair hearing and that the commission members were under duress from Governor Tamm when they ordered the lowered schedule of rates.

E. K. Wilcox and T. G. Connell, of Augusta, are representing the utility, while the commission is being represented by Assistant Attorneys-General John T. Goree and B. D. Murphy.

Breckinridge Urged To Oppose Copeland

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The fight for Dr. Royal S. Copeland's senatorial seat assumed three-cornered proportions today with the disclosure that petitions are being circulated for the nomination of Colonel Henry S. Breckinridge on an independent ticket.

Rumors of the prominent attorney's intentions drew from him this comment:

"I can only say petitions are being circulated for my nomination on an independent ticket."

Copeland, who has been supported by Tammany Hall in past campaigns, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself. On doing so, in Washington, he said he reached a decision to run again even though Farley, postmaster-general and democratic chairman both for New York state and the nation, wants someone else.

Then the administration was at odds with Tammany. Now the "Hall" has a new leader and its whole attitude is one of friendliness for the administration.

Copeland's candidacy for the democratic nomination was followed by the candidacy of Thomas F. Conway, Plattsburgh lawyer and former lieutenant governor, a close friend of President Roosevelt. This was regarded as a reprisal by the administration directed against Tammany.

But with peace made between the two, there was much conjecture on whether the Farley forces would keep "hands off" in the primaries.

To date no republican has announced.

PHONE CALL BALKS
OKLAHOMA KIDNAPING
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 6.—(AP)—An apparent attempt to kidnap Robert A. Hefner Sr., former justice of the state supreme court, led today to a search by federal agents and police for three men.

The wealthy and socially prominent jurist, police said, probably escaped the plot because of a telephone warning which came just in time.

A man telephoned Hefner that he was an old acquaintance in need of work and Hefner agreed to see him. When the judge went to the garage for his automobile, the man, a stranger, was waiting. During their conversation, the telephone rang.

It was Ira Loyd, a neighbor, who informed Hefner three men had aroused the suspicions of his janitor by inquiries concerning Hefner's habits.

Wife of Mussolini Expects Sixth Child
ROME, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The Italian public has received enthusiastically reports that Signora Rachele Mussolini, wife of the premier, expects the birth of her sixth child about February.

The reports were not confirmed but came from what was believed to be a reliable source at Riccione, where Signora Mussolini cared for the Dolfuss children while Frau Dolfuss attended the funeral of her slain husband in Vienna. Frau Dolfuss also expects to become a mother soon.

The foreign office spokesman said he knew nothing about the Mussolini reports and explained that any announcement would have to come from "Il Duce" himself.

It was thought that such an announcement would come shortly if the report is true, since Mussolini has been urging the Italian people to have large families as a patriotic duty and has distributed millions of lire as state prizes to those bearing many children. The Mussolinis now have three sons and two daughters.

GREEN ASKS REVIVAL OF CWA FOR WINTER

Labor Leader Says Employment Situation Again Will Be Bad.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 6. (AP)—Declaring that the executives of all large cities in the country are viewing with alarm the unemployment situation next winter, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, expressed himself today in favor of the restoration of the civil works administration.

He said unemployment was still a major problem and he estimated 10,000,000 unemployed remain in the country.

Green, who is here to attend a ten-day conference of the executive council of the A. F. of L., stated that the present meeting of the council is the most important held this year. The council, he said, will draft many of the reports to be made at the annual meeting of the A. F. of L. in October. He declared that a number of matters of vital interest to labor would be taken up at the meeting.

"The national recovery administration, its policies and the effects it is having on labor will be among the subjects taken up," Green said. "But we regard the problem of unemployment as of outstanding importance although the NRA has reduced that unemployment to some extent," he added. "It has no doubt created opportunity for three or four million people. When the peak of the unemployment situation was reached in 1933 there were more than 15,000,000 idle persons in this country."

"Since then, a reduction of hours and the stimulus given employment through the various codes of fair practice have returned many to work, but unemployment is still a major problem. There are now approximately 10,000,000 out of work and many of these are getting relief through funds contributed by the federal government. The situation is serious and is proving a great burden to the government."

U. S. CENTRAL BANK AGAIN AGITATED

banking has functioned for two decades, officials said, may depend on developments between now and January 1.

The proposed change is regarded as of particular importance because of the prospect of continued heavy government borrowing for refunding and emergency expenditures. These will approximate $10,000,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Make Own Money.

Treasury officials agree they have had the entire co-operation of the reserve and member banks. They point out, however, that if emergency expenditures were found necessary over a longer period than at first contemplated, the attitude of the reserve banks toward government securities might be a deciding factor in maintenance of the nation's credit.

Proponents of a central government banking authority, however, do not base their stand on this possibility. They challenge particularly the "profit motive" of the reserve banks, ownership of which is vested with the member institutions throughout the country. This, they say, tends to encourage policies advantageous to the banks rather than those in the interest of national welfare.

The proposals to be submitted to the next congress are still in a tentative stage.

understanding that the board of education will set up a similar amount and that FERA will supply another $20,000 to complete about 15 CWA jobs on which work was discontinued several weeks ago. The projects would provide 85 new classrooms, with the morningside school being the largest recipient, obtaining $15,724. Councilman H. Parks Rusk, of the thirteenth ward, was author of the measure.

2. Schools, $1,500 for furnishing for the newly constructed McLendon school in the tenth ward. Alderman G. Everett Millican championed the paper.

3. Sewers, $10,000.

4. Reconstruction of the machine shop at the city garage, $12,510. The contract to replace the structure was given to G. P. Donnellan.

5. High Museum of Art, $396 for repairs.

6. Replacing of a cable at the police station, $900.

Key's votes to salary raises and increases for 21 municipal employees were overridden, council and the alderman board voting almost solidly to allow them.

Several other small raises were voted by the council, but face similar action by the mayor.

Other Action Taken.

Among other outstanding actions of council were the following:

1. Voted to legalize fee charges of from 50 cents to $2.50 by Grady hospital interns for certification of sick and death benefit papers for patients.

2. Elected Dr. Lester Brewer, tenth ward druggist, to succeed J. Raymond Curtis, councilman, resigned.

3. Elected Oscar H. Williamson Jr., son of former Alderman Oscar H. Williamson, as custodian of the auditorium to succeed the late Walker T. Lee.

4. Filed a communication from Mayor Key which appointed J. J. Key to the position of city clerk.

More Warm Weather Is Forecast for Today

Fair and warmer weather today, with temperature extremes near 74 and 84 degrees, was forecast Monday by the weather bureau.

Monday's temperature ranged from 74 to 80 degrees, and the day was clear. The outlook, the bureau said, was for warm weather for the next two days.

LEADERS SOLD OUT, VETERANS ARE TOLD

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 6. (AP)—Charges that former leaders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars have "sold out" and accepted political positions from the government came today from Fred Windsor, of St. Joseph, Mo., senior vice commander of the organization.

Windsor also thrust the first note of political discussion into the third annual encampment of the Arkansas division, Veterans of Foreign Wars, as he addressed the first major meeting here.

He called upon the veterans to use their influence to re-elect congressmen and senators known to be favorable to the veterans' program. Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, especially was mentioned in this connection.

Haverly, Thomas K. Glenn, Robert F. Maddox, Councilman J. Frank Beck and Walter C. Hill as the Atlanta area committee.

5. Invited Dean Rusk, who is sitting within the council rail during the session. Dean Rusk has just returned from three years at Oxford University, England, and will be professor of political science at Mills College, Oakland, Cal., next year.

6. Settled for $1 the $15,000 verdict the city obtained against Vance Fain, the motor who began the work of wrecking the old city hall at Forsyth and Marietta streets. Fain is insolvent, council was told by Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon and George B. Lyle, and the action was taken in order that he could save his home, which was estimated to be worth only about $1,000.

Council to Name Park Head.

7. Took from the parks committee, at its own request, the right to elect a superintendent of parks, and vested it in council. The election was set for the first Monday in December, thus being changed from the first Tuesday in January, next year.

8. Referred to the police committee a move by Councilman Joseph E. Bernman to abolish the Winnipeg tag system for Atlanta, and also several other measures designed to set a minimum fine for traffic law violations.

9. Felicitated Donald Denny, of the Georgian, dean of city hall reporters, and Wright Bryan, of the Journal, on their birthdays. Both celebrated their anniversaries Monday.

10. Accepted an invitation extended by S. D. Truitt, Fulton county farm agent, to attend a barbecue to be given Wednesday at Lakewood park as a part of the week's program of Fulton County Boys' and Girls' 4-H Clubs.

11. Heard J. Henson Tatum explain that he was striking the names of women voters from the registration lists who were in arrears in poll taxes just as he is eliminating the men.

The aldermanic board after having held in its possession for the last several weeks a contract with the Audit Company of the South to audit city books, finally approved the measure and sent it to Key for his signature.

TRUCK EMPLOYERS FIGHT OLSON RULE IN FEDERAL COURT

By General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief.

EMPLOYERS SEEK TO HALT MILITARY RULE OF OLSON

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 6. (AP)—A check rein of Governor Floyd B. Olson with his order strictly limiting vehicle movements in the truck drivers' strike and an end to military rule was demanded today by the United States government today by a group of individual employers.

They filed a court action in United States district court, appealing for a federal writ first restraining, then permanently enjoining, the chief executive from closing streets, with the national guard, to all but those trucks given official permits to operate until the strike is settled.

Adjutant General E. A. Walsh said 47 truck owners among those represented by the employers' advisory committee, rebelled against the majority's stand for settlement and bowed to the government's mandate by subscribing to the Has-Dunnigan peace plan, thus becoming eligible to operate.

The action, filed by 10 business houses, which included two of the leading merchandise and transfer firms, was signed by Federal Judges Gunnar H. Mordbye and Joseph Molyneux. They set a hearing for 2 p. m. Wednesday. The application named Governor Olson, General Walsh and Colonel Elmer McDevitt, Provost Marshal.

Loss of "many thousands of dollars" and unlawful restrictions which "stifle business in general" were claimed by the petitioners.

The application also alleged the military rule edict interferes with the constitutional rights of citizens; was issued when there was no occasion for such drastic action, and was based on a statement of conditions not existing.

As to military rule, the petition alleged conditions set up for the issuance of military permits to operate are unconstitutional, that the restrictions invade the rights of their business, and that the restrictions interfere with the rights of truck owners to use their own property on public streets.

Trucking was at a virtual standstill when business opened this morning. By noon, 1,100 permits had been issued and almost 2,000 persons stood in line to make application.

UNNAMED MAN IS SOUGHT IN ALABAMA ABDUCTION

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 6. (AP)—Beneath a surface calm there was a strong undercurrent of apprehension in this textile center tonight as officers sought an unnamed man on a warrant in connection with the abduction of a labor leader early yesterday.

The warrant was for a man in connection with the abduction of John Dean, international representative of the United Textile Workers of America.

The abduction, first violence against any of the 5,000 striking textile workers or their leaders, disrupted the good-humored calm that has existed since the walkout on July 17.

Dean, who was taken from his hotel room and driven away in an automobile by four unmasked men, was registered in a hotel at Fayetteville.

WATERMELON ACCORD APPROVED BY WALLACE

Marketing Agreement Designed to Limit Shipments to Requirements.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today announced that a marketing agreement for the southeastern watermelon industry had been approved. The agreement, which is designed to increase returns to growers through regulation of the volume of shipments in keeping with market requirements, includes the states of Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina and North Carolina.

Supervision of the terms of the agreement will be through a control committee representative of both growers and shippers. In regulating shipments of water melons to market, the control committee may allow only United States grade No. 1 melons to be shipped, or if markets become glutted, may withhold shipments for periods of 48 hours at five-day intervals, officials of the A. A. A. said.

The member of the control committee is allowed to vote on these matters. The agreement is not being made from the state that it represents.

The control committee is composed of representatives of both growers and shippers, from the producing states. An advisory committee for each state is to be elected in each state. The growers' members of the advisory committee and the shippers' members of each committee will select representatives from their state to serve on the control committee. Florida is divided into two districts with a grower representative from each district on the control committee.

ANACONDA STRIKERS RESORT TO GUNFIRE

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 6. (UP)—Gunfire roared and flames crackled late today as Butte's three-month copper strike was torn by new violence.

A mob rioted in the heart of the business district, laying siege to Anaconda Copper Company offices for three hours.

The windshield of a police patrol car was shattered by gunfire.

One Anaconda employee was badly beaten. Another fled the mob and escaped by holding the crowd at bay with a pistol.

An expensive Anaconda Company limousine was overturned and set afire. Flames from the machine threatened a nearby brewery.

Another group of company employees was stoned.

The violence started in front of the Hennessey building, which houses company offices, and spread up the sides of the hill where the mines are located.

Earlier a charge of dynamite was set off at the Stewart mine and attempts were made to batter down gates of the Green Mountain and Mountain Con Mine yards.

FLORIDA FISHERMEN WILL STRIKE FRIDAY

FORT MYERS, Fla., Aug. 6. (AP)—Omaha A. Clarke, of Naples, president of the Florida Fish Producers' Association, announced today that 3,000 fishermen will hang up their mullet nets Friday in support of a strike called by the association.

Clarke said the strike was called in order to bring dealers together on a uniform price. It is the second strike of the fishermen this year, he recalled.

Fish dealers at Everglades, Naples and this city, he declared, already have said they cannot afford to pay the 3 cents per pound demanded by striking fishermen and are preparing to close their plants and lay stations after Friday.

Clarke blamed the necessity for the strike on price cutting among the dealers, who, he said, claimed the competition of Virginia and North Carolina fishermen made it impossible to compete at 3 cents.

COMMENT At The CAPITAL

What American People Will Do With Surplus Electric Power Most Puzzling, Declares Lawrence

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President Roosevelt's speech at Portland, Ore., announcing himself as in favor of more and more electric power development, is a complete reversal of the position made by other agencies of the federal government which have insisted that excess plant capacity in industry must be discouraged and that new capital must not be put into the construction of new plants.

The total excess of generating capacity in the United States today is 25 per cent.

And the plan of the president for developing hydroelectric projects would give the United States an output of electrical energy every year equal to two-thirds of the total central station load which America has developed in the last 30 years. And it can hardly be said that the utility companies underestimated the needs of this, the most highly electrified country in the world. For one of the troubles which the utility industry is suffering from today—overcapitalization—is directly due to optimistic anticipation of future growth.

Hence, just what the American people are going to do with all this surplus power is something which is most puzzling. For, whenever the big projects—on which the federal government would ultimately spend a billion dollars—are discussed by the proponents of water power development, the argument usually made is that the people will benefit by cheaper rates.

CCC YOUTH IS INJURED IN DIVE AT SOPERTON

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 6. (AP)—A dive into a river swimming hole which has been used all summer by CCC youths at Soperton, Ga., ended disastrously Sunday for Billy Bruner, of this city. He struck some submerged object, fractured his neck and is now in the United States Marine hospital here with death expected within a few hours. Hospital authorities held out no hope for the youth's recovery.

He had been at the Soperton forestry camp for a year, had just been given a promotion and was to have been transferred to another camp today.

Young Bruner was transported 100 miles from Soperton to Savannah by army ambulance.

AGENTS JAIL WOMAN AS NARCOTIC BUYER

In the shadow of the Baptist Tabernacle church, on Luckie street, Clara Peers, 46, who gave her address as 421 E. 10th street, was arrested Sunday as she was making a purchase of 12 tablets of alleged morphine.

According to Federal Narcotic Agent E. E. Middlebrooks, the woman was standing on the steps of the church and made the purchase. She was arrested and jailed by the officer.

SMALL ITEM.

The big question is what the people are going to do when they get to the realm of cheaper power. Electricity is one of the smallest items in the household's budget.

It is true, the use of electrical appliances is being stimulated and America has only scratched the surface of the business it can do in electrical appliances. But the real cost is not the hydroelectric projects or the generation of electrical energy. It is the transmission and distribution systems which represent 80 per cent of the total cost of doing business. Already the country has a big system for distributing electrical energy. The investment amounts to about $14,000,000,000.

Also, the coal industry thinks the steam plant is just about as economical as the water-power project. The National Coal Association has been pleading with federal government agencies to stop lending money for the building of power plants that take away the market for coal. The possible plight of the miners who are to be thrown out of work permanently if coal's uses are curtailed is contrasted with the temporary advantage of the employment given on construction projects.

INVESTMENT.

Some idea of the investment of the American people in existing power systems may be gained by a study of recent figures which show that 10 per cent of all the stockholders own only one share of stock, and that three-fourths of the total number of stockholders own 10 shares or less.

It is interesting to note that two-thirds of all the stockholders are women. Through the fact that savings banks and insurance companies and educational institutions own large quantities of utility securities, it may be said that the ownership of the public utilities of America, against which the government is about to engage in competition through the generation of excess power, is very widely diffused among a large percentage of the people. It runs into many millions of individuals.

Rates are bound to come down when there is a surplus of power, but finally they come to the point of diminishing returns—the below cost line. The municipal government pays no taxes on its plant, buys cheap power from the federal government, and the people in other parts of the country make up the difference. This procedure ultimately would force the private company to liquidate its investment. Already, the example of what happened at Knoxville, Tenn., this month, when a private company was forced out of business by the federal government, is before the country.

First Speech.

Nearly two years ago, when Mr. Roosevelt was campaigning, he made his famous power speech at Portland, Oregon. He said then that, whether on state-owned or federal-owned power sites, "private capital should be given the first opportunity to transmit and distribute the power on the basis of the best service and the lowest rates to give a real saving to the people."

In last week's speech at Portland, the president made no reference to private capital but emphasized, instead, that the power developed on federal projects would force the private company to liquidate its investment. This means, judging by the change that has taken place in the last year and the use of the word "force" to help acquire private plants under threat of competition, that municipal or state ownership is to be encouraged by the federal government, and that, so far as the investors in private utilities are concerned, they face a period of serious deflation unless the administration comes to realize some far-reaching consequences of its economic experiments with the "yardstick" idea.

Tobacco is sold
in open auctions. We buy the right kinds—mild and ripe—for Chesterfield—
and pay the price

..but even that's not all
there is to it

AFTER you receive the tobacco from the farmers you have to dry it just right and then store it away for ageing for over two years. Then you take the different types of home-grown and Turkish tobaccos and weld them together in such a way as to make a balanced blend.

The Chesterfield process of blending and cross-blending tobaccos is different from others, and we believe it helps to make a milder and better tasting cigarette.

Down where they grow tobacco—in most places—Chesterfield is the largest selling cigarette.

VARNETTE IS HELD ON MURDER COUNT

Fort Valley Jury Probing Death of Jimmy Dixon Orders Companion Held.

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Dewey L. Varnette, 40, was held by a coroner's jury on a charge of murder today in the slaying of Jimmy Dixon, 25, here early today.

Witnesses said Varnette had been drinking and was in a boisterous mood on the street at midnight. Police threatened to arrest him and Dixon said he would take him to his room in the Winona hotel.

They said Dixon was trying to get him to enter the hotel when he was shot. Other witnesses said the men had been in a restaurant about midnight and Varnette drew his pistol on Dixon then but was quiet.

Varnette is a federal employee in the phony peach disease laboratory here.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Radical circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation, and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for hundreds of patients with a marvelous record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get rid of their Pile misery or money-back.

$1,575,876 Paid for Tobacco in Georgia During First Week

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

First week bright leaf tobacco sales in Georgia totaled 9,966,738 pounds for an average price of 22.62 cents per pound, John Dancy, statistician of the state department of agriculture, reported today. The approximate total amount paid was $1,575,876.14.

The sales were 2,000,000 pounds under sales for the first week in 1933, when 9,153,547 pounds were sold.

The department of agriculture made no official average of last year's price but an unofficial average of the prices paid on each of the 15 markets for the first week was 23.81 cents per pound.

Markets with four warehouses led all markets in sales of the blue-cured leaf with 1,234,852 pounds for an average per pound of 23.32 cents.

The highest average price paid on the first week at any market was 27.31 cents per pound for 222,232 pounds sold at Strickland's warehouse on the Adel market. The highest average for all warehouses at any one market was 24.45 cents per pound for the 976,310 pounds sold at Tifton.

The official state department of agriculture figures on the first week's tobacco sales are shown in the following table:

Gainesville Store Robbed.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 6.—Robbers took $246 from the J. C. Penny store here, probably Saturday night, the burglary being discovered Sunday afternoon, when an employee went to the store. It is believed that the burglar secreted himself in the store Saturday night before it was closed and after securing the money, broke out a transom and escaped.

Some checks and 17 cents were left.

Rabbits Live With Cat.

CHICOPEE, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—But for their tendency to hop instead of walk, three little bunnies would not be enjoying the motherly care of Joe Yates.

Soon after Yates discovered his cat was the mother of three fine kittens he was astonished to find her family had been doubled. Closer investigation disclosed the three additions were three brown field rabbits.

The mamma cat showed concern when three of her "kittens" began to hop about and later on Yates discovered his mistake.

INJUNCTION HALTS BUS PLAN AT MACON

MACON, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—A temporary injunction restraining the city of Macon and the Georgia Power Company from consummating an agreement to replace the present street car system with bus service has been granted by Judge Louis L. Brown, of Bibb county superior court.

W. J. Malone Jr., P. E. Middlebrooks and C. R. Durden, who were granted an order restraining the city and the company from completing a previous agreement, objected to the new plan for the transfer of the street car system and were given the injunction. The three said the new plan was just as objectionable to them as the first.

The petition says the principal objection to the new proposed ordinance is a section allowing the power company to assign its transportation franchise to whom ever it chooses, with the power company guaranteeing fulfillment of the agreement with the city. They said the company could not legally assume the obligations of another corporation.

The power company's taxes also would be reduced by the change from street cars to buses, the three claim. They predicted the plan for setting up $200,000 as "liquidated damages" would result in the company discontinuing the bus service and the city suing for the money.

Judge Brown set August 16 as the date for hearing a plea for an interdictory injunction. A final hearing of the case before a jury has been requested.

BUSES TAKE PLACE OF COLUMBUS CARS

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 6.—For the first time in 42 years there are no street cars in Columbus. Starting Sunday the North Highlands street car, the last one in the city, was supplanted by buses in accordance with permission given the transportation company by the city commission.

MERCER TO RENOVATE DORMITORY AT MACON

MACON, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The renovation of Sherwood hall, main dormitory at Mercer University, is expected to give the Baptist institution modern student housing facilities approximated at $100,000.

The rebuilding work, which will cost $15,000, was scheduled to begin today. Funds donated by Georgia Baptist churches and laymen as memorials to their members and friends. The entire interior of the three-story red brick building will be rebuilt, running water will be piped into each of the 70 rooms and modern plumbing will be installed.

School officials hope to have the building ready for occupancy by late September.

HIGH'S BASEMENT

At the same time Governor Talmadge is trying to get a national wide significance, charging that Governor Talmadge has lined up with the forces of Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, and Governor Langer, of North Dakota, as allies of the bitter reactionists who are fighting the president every step of the way.

Franklin D. Roosevelt has been good to the people of his adopted state," Judge Pittman declared. "He has sent millions into Georgia in farm benefits and in farm loans. He has seen that Georgia is a great cotton and tobacco-raising state, has not been left out of the great national recovery program."

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt is the only president this nation has ever had who got out and actually aided the man who follows the plow."

"He has done this in the face of determined opposition. And in doing it he has had to put in charge of the relief funds in Georgia men and women from other states. He found out early in his administration that he could not trust Eugene Talmadge and his political machine to administer these funds so that the masses would benefit."

"True citizens of Georgia are not ungrateful to our great national leader. Labor has not been fooled by the Talmadge demagoguery and daily more and more farmers are rallying against the man who with words claims to be their friend yet whose actions except for the intervention of the governor, is forcing them to farm in a state of penury."

"Turning to a discussion of Talmadge's claims that to establish the minimum wage scale in Georgia that has been accepted by President Roosevelt for the entire nation would create 'chaos,' Judge Pittman said this was further evidence that Talmadge is fighting the national administration and charged that the governor is striving futilely to justify the slave-driving tactics of John Whitley, LaGrange contractor and close political friend of the governor, who is forcing him in the United States court 'for virtual peonage' among his workers."

ATLANTA MAN HURT IN AUGUSTA CRASH

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—J. P. Newell, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Josiah T. Clark, of Augusta, were injured last night when their car collided at an intersection on federal route one near Augusta.

County officers said the cars ran through a Newell's driveway to miss hitting a child in the road.

Newell's injuries were confined to contusions of his left arm and fractured ribs. Mrs. Clark had lacerations on her hands and head.

Both are confined at the University hospital.

BUSINESS AS A "RESOURCE"

With most persons the terms "national resources" and "natural resources" are synonymous, as meaning great deposits of minerals, unlimited water power and the other physical resources with which America is so bountifully supplied.

To President Roosevelt national resources have no such limitation. In his speech from the heart of Glacier Park, one of the nation's greatest natural resources, he stressed the importance of agriculture and industry as definite and vital parts of our national resources, and pledged that as the great parks have been rescued from their would-be despoilers, so will the products of field and factory be protected from "the selfishness of individuals."

Using a favorite phrase, the president assured his radio audience, "with all the earnestness at my command," that as the great public properties of the nation have been obtained and retained for the benefit of the public, so will the resources of agriculture and industry be rededicated to the public interest.

The greatest stumbling block in the dissemination and adoption of the ideals of the New Deal has been the slowness of the people as a whole to grasp their scope and significance. As industrialists, agriculturalists and workers in commerce the people of the United States have been individualists, with little or no realization that sooner or later the time would come when the national weal as well as personal gain must be considered in the conduct of their various pursuits.

With his unusual rare faculty of choosing the opportune time to emphasize a policy or a principle, President Roosevelt selected the impressive surroundings of one of our greatest natural resources as the spot from which to drive home to the consciousness of the people of the nation the necessity that the economic resources of the nation be similarly dedicated to the good of the public.

Pointing out the need for national unity if the country is to obtain the maximum benefits from the development of its resources of all kinds, the president expresses the belief that "we know, more and more, that the east has a stake in the west, and the west has a stake in the east; that the nation must and shall be considered as a whole, and not as an aggregation of disjointed groups."

The address will undoubtedly bring a further realization to the people of the country that the time has passed when the city man or the tiller of the soil can selfishly conduct his activities with an eye single to his own betterment. The development of the resources of the nation has now reached the point where, if we are to reap to the full of our opportunities, the industrialists and leaders of commerce must realize their stake in agriculture, and our farmers must grasp the extent to which their well-being is based upon the prosperity of those in the centers of population.

HITLER AND WAR.

The world is not likely to be hoodwinked by Chancellor-President Hitler's declaration that "if it rests with Germany, war will not come again."

Such a statement does not carry conviction when considered in connection with Hitler's demands for an increase in the German regular army, nor with his continued development of millions of black-shirt troops into a disciplined force that could overnight be converted into effective fighting units.

Neither is it impressive in the light of the subversive and antagonistic activities of the Nazi government in its relations with other European nations. The greatest threat to the peace of the continent now exists in the troubled conditions in Austria, for which the German Nazis, if not directly or at least indirectly, responsible. If Hitler really desires peace he can serve best to that end by the simple expedient of clamping the lid on the malcontents in Germany who are responsible for the continued unrest in Austria.

Hitler's statement, in the face of existing facts, must be viewed in the light of a conciliatory gesture to the governments that have held the Nazis responsible for the assassination of Chancellor Dollfus. With his personal popularity rapidly waning among the masses of the German people, with the internal discontent undoubtedly increased by his arbitrary seizing of the presidency and the oath of allegiance forced upon the reichswehr, he cannot afford now to have the pressure from without assume threatening proportions.

His assumption of both the presidency and the chancellorship has given him supreme authority, but with the scales falling from the eyes of the German people, his position is far from as secure today as it was when he first seized power as dictator.

The logic of the situation is too obvious to permit his plea for peace to be convincing, despite its apparent frankness and the cleverness with which it is phrased.

EYES OF THE WORLD ON BYRD.

Once more the eyes of the civilized world are focused on Admiral Richard Byrd, intrepid American whose daring has conquered the frozen wastes of both the north and south poles, and who is now "holed in" for the winter in the farthest south habitation ever occupied by man.

The failure of the first expedition that attempted to answer his call for rescue, made necessary by his physical condition, caused universal apprehension that his lonely vigil might mark the end of a career that has seen many high spots.

Now that a second relief expedition, better planned and equipped, is on the way, the world will anxiously watch its progress over the perils of the dangerous route leading to the spot where Admiral Byrd, over the protest of his companions, remained to take the observations he hoped would be of service to all humanity.

The drive of this expedition during the heart of the arctic winter takes its place with those epic of the frozen wastes of the north and south which have earned admiration and honors for hardy men of many nationalities. The heroic men who are undertaking it carry with them not only the keen interest but the earnest hope for success of those in every part of the world who honor daring and indefatigable determination.

The way that Literary Digest poll turned out, the republican candidate for president in 1936 will merely be a pretender to the throne.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The Next Step.

The next step in the big scheme for an improved sense of security in Europe by means of eastern regional pacts is already the subject of exchanges between the various European capitals. It has been made possible by a hint thrown out the recent speech of Herr Hees, Herr Hitler's deputy in the Nazi party, to the effect that an accommodation with France might be possible. It is not a secret that the virtual certainty of Russia's now joining the League of Nations has had a deep effect in Berlin. The result is that, whereas even a week ago it was not deemed likely that Germany would either sign an eastern pact or withdraw her notice of accession from the League of Nations, both these contingencies are now being discussed as practically possible.

Italy is making special efforts in Berlin to have Germany come back to Geneva and do something for the sake of peace in Germany besides high-toned talk. The eastern pact involves this: France guarantees Germany's border against an attack by Russia (which will never take place) and also guarantees Russia's border against an attack by Germany (which is something Germany and Hitler have continuously threatened). The French are wonderful diplomats. They have maneuvered Hitler into an impasse. If he says no and won't sign the pact, he is the boy who stands revealed before the world as the disturber of the peace.

Woman Soldiers

In Russia.

The Soviet Union's battalions of woman soldiers are now to be officially recognized as a dependable branch of the red army's fighting force, according to dispatches from Moscow. A female officer of high rank is to be attached to the general staff. Women soldiers in the U. S. S. R. have up to the present had duties like those of the British "women's auxiliary army corps," the so-called "Wacs," of pleasant memory, for we were quartered next to their camp for a whole month while resting up at Etanov (yes, many a cup of tea I got from them. It's all in knowing how). Those Russian women will have a harder task. They are to be fighting soldiers. Not tea peddlers. And they may soon be called upon to show their mettle. For if we may believe Arthur Henning, the correspondent of the Chicago Tribune in Washington, American army authorities believe a conflict in the far east very near.

"Japan is the disturbing element," he says, "so disturbing that war is considered a possibility."

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

SOME WOMEN ARE EASY TO LOOK AT AND SOME FOODS ARE EASY TO EAT.

Some of the beauty contest winners suggest corn syrup to me. The carbohydrates—such as bread, sugar, syrup, cakes, pies, puddings, candy, ice cream, sweetened cereals, crackers, cookies, breakfast cereals, fountain beverages, beer, wine—are all pretty nourishing stuff, and, oh, so easy to eat or drink whether you are hungry or not. All of these are notoriously lacking in food minerals and in vitamins. Beauty contest winners appear to lack qualities that make a woman a good wife.

All the items mentioned are made from foods that in their original natural state contain vitamins or minerals in abundance. The process of manufacture, refinement, purification, pasteurization, sterilization, fumigation, bleaching, preservation, concentration or cooking these essential factors are partially or entirely removed or destroyed.

For efficiency and well being the body demands not only a minimum of calories from protein, but also a minimum of minerals and vitamins. The ordinary diet of civilized man, consisting of refined, refined, refined, refined, refined foods, fails to supply the minimum of minerals and vitamins required. In the instinctive effort to get these essentials most of us eat too much of the food we have. The excess piles up as fat. And still we are hungry, for the demand has not been met.

The easiest kind of food to eat is carbohydrate. Candy, ice cream, crackers, bread, cakes, pie, puddings, hot fudge sauce—these things are so easy to eat, even when you are not particularly hungry or when you have just had a full meal of regular victuals or when some one invites you to have some refreshment.

Thus the nutritional deficiency is a kind of vicious circle. You crave food because you are not properly nourished. The easiest and most available and perhaps the most tempting and palatable things to eat are these very items, and they happen to be the poorest in mineral and vitamin content.

Our national per capita consumption of sugar is enormous, and it is increasing year by year. So are obesity and diabetes on the increase. Probably many other ailments which are not so definitely associated with excessive consumption of carbohydrate food are increasing.

For the immediate treatment of obesity or overweight it is important to see that the diet shall provide the correct quota of minerals and vitamins. In such a diet it is possible to use concentrates which will bring the proportions of these essentials well up to or a bit above the natural or normal level. Indeed it is fair to say that a diet which is not thus scientifically planned is a menace to health, and thousands of persons who have died unwisely or under incompetent direction have found that whether they lost weight or not, their health has suffered in consequence of the bad nutrition.

THIRD RINGLING MAN

DIES OF TYPHOID

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—(P)—Robert Webster, of Buffalo, N. Y., a property man for the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined circus, died today as the third victim of typhoid fever that broke out among the circus personnel several weeks ago. Seventy-seven employees were in Harper hospital here at one time with suspected or actual cases of typhoid. The number has been reduced by releases to 56 and four others probably will be released tomorrow or Wednesday, it was said at the hospital.

Forty-four of the patients developed positive typhoid cases. Twenty of them have been considered in more or less serious condition. Three, besides Webster, were listed today as critically ill. They are: Edward Heinz, no address; Clarence Kenney, Sassa, Fla.; and Kent Lewis, of Detroit.

Of the other two deaths, one occurred here last week and the other in Dayton, Ohio, shortly after the outbreak started.

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

VISIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President Roosevelt visualized the Pacific northwest irrigated to full fertility and pulsating with new electrical energy. That started some of our best economic seers to visualizing the nation of the future. It is quite a delicate subject, and hardly as safe politically to talk about as the future of the northwest. Consequently, the bright boys are keeping their discussions private.

They have an idea that the trend will continue along lines of decentralization of population. At birth, America grew at the good seaports. In her teens, she extended along the railroads. In her maturity, she will expand along the new smooth main highways. This does not mean the cities will necessarily lose, but that the eventual United States will be one continuous city.

NATURE

It is not an astounding prophecy because it is already partially fulfilled. The main highway from Washington to New York is practically a continuous city. There are very few stretches of highway arteries where you can get more than a few minutes away from gas stations, lodgings, lunchrooms and garages.

Accompanying this development, the seers foresee the ultimate spread of city facilities for comfort and industry through the whole country. Hydroelectric power development will bring energy for factories whose products can go out on trucks and upon near-by railroads.

The TVA dream of electric washing machines, stoves, cooling systems and furnaces in many homes is not confined to the Tennessee valley. President Roosevelt will make other sections than the northwest dam-conscious and, if he doesn't, someone else will. There then will also be television for amusement, and probably even the city noises and gasoline odors.

POLITICS

Up to today the democratic congressmen have been faring extraordinarily well in the primaries. Only seven have bit the dust out of approximately 200 who faced the machine gun ballots of their party voters.

The democratic congressional campaign committee has a good excuse for every casualty. Mr. Roosevelt's prestige or the New Deal's was not involved in any of the defeats, they say. That is, all of the seven (Nesbit, Illinois; Jeffers and Allgood, Alabama; Abernathy, North Carolina, and Swank, McKeown and McClintic, Oklahoma) are supplanted on the democratic ticket by men just as New Dealers as they were.

The primary casualty list in both parties is unusually small. More candidates have lost because of their own ambitions. Fully 15 democratic members of the house have been defeated trying to get the party nominations for the senate or for governor thus far.

The senate democratic situation is similar. Only one democratic senator (Erickson, of Montana) failed to win renomination. A rather curious line on the situation will be available when returns are in from the five primaries of Tuesday and final returns come in from Kentucky.

GRAND COULEE Mr. Roosevelt was not fooling when he predicted the higher power dam would be built at Grand Coulee. Although he did not say when, everyone here believes it will start as soon as the present low flood control dam is completed. There will be strong political pressure for it. Also the unanswerable argument that its construction will be cheaper if continuous.

MAINE The democrats are inwardly perturbed about the election coming in Maine September 10. That situation has been taken up in several private pow-wows among the master minds. Money and help will unquestionably be forthcoming shortly for the Maine democratic organization.

That is the only state to elect congressmen before the regular election in November, and it always gets a lot of publicity. The republicans coined the slogan, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," and induced the country to believe it.

The Literary Digest poll on Maine was too close to be comforting to the democrats. Roosevelt led by 8,504 to 7,708.

NOTES

Secretary Morgenthau's move to curb politics in his department is serious. He will be able to succeed only to a degree, but the degree will be greater than Washington thought possible. The peculiar thing about that is the other departments (particularly justice) have not followed suit.

Several administration orators cut short their summer speaking plans because they felt that they were not getting anywhere, not accomplishing anything.

Very much on the q. t., a few efficiency experts have been prying through certain government departments here. Bureau chiefs have been told in several known instances to cut personnel now so the jobs that are left can last longer. It looks like the beginning of an economy move, which certainly does not fit in with the government spending program.

Nobody Has Yet Found a Way To Drive From the Back Seat of a Hearse

By Robert Quillen

A certain man who had worked hard and accumulated a great fortune decided to place his house in order and sent for his lawyer. "I wish to make a will," said he, "dividing my property equally among my children. But I also wish to provide safeguards and impose restrictions that will require them to live decent and orderly lives. They don't get a cent if they don't behave."

"I see," said the lawyer. "You wish to leave a blueprint, telling them how to live, and they must follow instructions or lose their inheritance." "That's the idea," said the rich man. "I want them to be self-sufficient."

"Well," said the lawyer, "have you managed your own life so wisely that you have no regrets?" "No," the rich man admitted, "I have made an unhappy mess of it." "And yet you feel competent to manage the lives of your children. That is strange. Do they obey you in all matters and accept your advice without resentment?"

"They do not," said the rich man. "These spoiled modern youngsters."

"I understand," interrupted the lawyer. "You can't control them while you are alive, yet you expect to do it after you are dead. I envy your faith. But no doubt your management of their lives up to this time, despite their occasional rebellions, has been uniformly successful."

"No, I've made a lot of mistakes. That's one reason I—"

"Just so," said the lawyer. "You failed while the youngsters were soft clay in your hands, and you hope to succeed now that the clay has hardened. By the way, you have unusual force and strength of character. Are these qualities the result of a soft and sheltered life?"

"By a long shot," said the rich man. "I was born in poverty and I had to sweat for every dime I got. It takes adversity and struggle to make a strong man."

"So it does," the lawyer agreed. "Now one thing more. Name me five of your acquaintances who were made happier, more decent and more useful by inheriting great fortunes."

The rich man looked at the floor. Then he dismissed his lawyer and went out to blow in his money while he had time.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Shorts Create Golf Crisis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Some of the golfing ladies in the New York region have created a situation by turning up for the tournaments wearing shorts which are short for shorts pants. Shorts are not in the golfing tradition and the lady chairman of one of the tournaments undertook to bar the elbowless at the tea, or, at least, interval, to all those competitors whose costumes violated what she believed to be the regulations.

It was then discovered, that there are no fixed regulations as to the proper attire for either ladies or gents in golf and that a lady's conscience must be her guide in this matter. Her duty is to be a member of the meeting of the tournament committee of the women's metropolitan golf association to decide whether ladies may wear short pants in future tournaments and, if so, what ladies.

Victory Likely

This is the first time the ladies have given a man any trouble in the matter of regalia in golf. In other sports, notably swimming and tennis, female athletes who were confident of their charm, including some who were over-confident, pioneered in the destruction of simplicity and negligibility some years ago. The contention in those sports at the time was similar to that which now reigns in the lady golf tournaments—simplicity and negligibility were the order of the day. They are likely to win in golf, also, as there seems to be no power strong enough to compel the ladies to wear dresses or even short trousers and skirts. They look and feel better in their negligibles.

There has never been any complaint from the men about the ladies' dress, now and then, that females desiring to wear shorts, or less, for swimming, tennis or golf should be required to obtain permits from the men's art committee. The trouble has always been that some ladies insist on wearing the minimum who are not qualified by nature to do so.

The men in golf are not depressed by beholders and the need for a jury to pass on the applicants will never be more urgent in any sport than in the game of golf.

Golf Begets Sturdy Legs.

The fact is that golf, being a walking game, is likely to develop a type of leg which is known as the pool-table or piano leg which is not suitable for going about. Females who are campers acquire the same sturdy but rather inflexible development and it is an interesting fact that those ladies who are least qualified to play golf are generally the most determined to wear them.

With the disappearance of the wall-rus types from the swimming teams and the trend toward the negligibility in swimming costumes was welcomed by press and public. It was welcomed with special heartiness by the press as the fashioning of the new type of swimsuit has produced many interesting pictures for the rotogravures and simplified the task of the art editors considerably.

There was a brief situation in the courts of Wimbledon where her majesty the queen, Mrs. Mary, was seen in the matter of dress, did not approve of the nude feminine leg as a public spectacle and her wishes were made known to the ladies who were to play in the tournament. The women were told to wear long skirts and to wear stockings. The women who were to play in the tournament were told to wear long skirts and to wear stockings.

This year, even in the English tournaments, shorts were worn and the women who were to play in the tournament were told to wear long skirts and to wear stockings.

Tennis Ladies The tennis ladies are a little more demure. They first left off their stockings except on the courts of Wimbledon where her majesty the queen, Mrs. Mary, was seen in the matter of dress, did not approve of the nude feminine leg as a public spectacle and her wishes were made known to the ladies who were to play in the tournament. The women were told to wear long skirts and to wear stockings.

This year, even in the English tournaments, shorts were worn and the women who were to play in the tournament were told to wear long skirts and to wear stockings.

Complications The trend toward a more demure attire of the ladies complicates the problem of covering sports events for the newspapers. Sports experts know that the open and the same time it is frankly stated that the program contemplates a trade arrangement with Japan which, if carried out, would be a most important step in the opening of the door to such commodities of international trade as are manufactured in Japan.

It is a typical illustration of the eastern naïveté that in the announcement of this economic emphasis should be placed on the statement that the opportunity for the investment of foreign capital and the use of foreign brains demonstrate the fact that the program is in line with the principle of the open door. The same time it is frankly stated that the program contemplates a trade arrangement with Japan which, if carried out, would be a most important step in the opening of the door to such commodities of international trade as are manufactured in Japan.

It is perhaps only fair to say that so far as the Japanese government is concerned, its utterances have been apparently sincere in insisting that the open-door policy in Manchuria will be maintained to the fullest degree—but this certainly is not the idea of the Japan-Manchuria Business Association, which at a recent meeting in Tokyo took the line that the government should be extended not only to the industries necessary to national defense, but to other basic industries as well. It was urged that in controlling industries in Japan built up in Manchuria it is recognized that a "right industry in the right place" principle be adopted.

There is, of course, no mistaking the inference with regard to foreign competition of the further statement that "such industries as spinning, sugar, flour, cement, pulp and paper, should not be left open for private undertaking in Manchuria."

Pitfalls to Avoid. If Japan is wise, she will avoid the pitfalls certain to follow the attempt to establish any such interlocking economic system between the two countries. The first place, which is already a serious doubt upon her assertions that she is moving in Manchuria merely for the purpose of aiding the inhabitants of that country to a more independent nation, and, secondly, it will undoubtedly preclude diplomatic recognition of the new state. With any such economic control joined to the political and military dominance now being exercised, it is certain that Manchuria will be regarded as the chancellors of the world as a dependent instead of a free and independent state.

The major reconstruction project undertaken by the new government which is now the farthest advanced, and which is most definitely serving its ultimate purpose, is the improvement and broadening of transportation and communications.

Only the railroad. Two years ago there was only one well-equipped, efficiently operated railroad system in the territory—the South Manchurian railway and operated by the Japanese under treaty right with China. The various zones of

"Loot Taxes" Abolished in Manchukuo.

HSINKING, Manchukuo.—(By Mail.)—It is typical of the disinclination of the Chinese to accept new conditions, or even to realize them, that the taxpayers of Manchuria seem to be in ignorance of the fact that the government of the new state of Manchukuo has reduced their taxes materially and given them a money with a permanent purchasing power, instead of the currency they have had formerly, which lost in value with each year of its age, becoming practically worthless within 10 years old.

Among the taxes either reduced or abolished, are special levies of various kinds on crops, commodities and animals, the salt surtax and the cigar tax. Taxes in arrears in Hehoh and Hsinking provinces have been exempted. All of these reductions, eliminations and exemptions total some 25,000,000 yuan per year—a direct saving extended to the taxpayers of the country at a time when the groundwork is being laid to give them governmental service they have never known—such as schools, good roads, proper policing and health and sanitary service.

To Save Money. Salt making is, as in the case with many countries, a government monopoly. Hitherto the warlords have reaped huge sums from this source, but the new government at Hsinking has made sweeping reductions in the salt tax which it has estimated will save the consumers nearly 2,500,000 yuan annually. In addition it has fixed at 250,000,000 yuan the maximum sum it shall receive from sources of all the probability is that this limitation will make more tax reductions certain.

For the purpose of further relieving the tax burden on the people of Manchuria, many of the customs tariffs have either been rescinded or lowered. The Chinese and Russian sections of Manchuria. In the territory controlled by the railroad modern cities had sprung up, mines and industries built and hotels and schools and hospitals furnished by the transportation company for the people living in the communities served.

But this territory represented only a small part of the great Manchuria. The railroads conducted by the Chinese, such as the Chinese Eastern, which was jointly owned by the Chinese and Russians, were in inferior in equipment, management and in the service rendered.

Telegraph lines were few and far between, and inefficient, long distance telephone lines almost unknown, there was no radio communication, nor motorized transportation. The roads

NRA SEEKS TO SILENCE CODE WAGE CRITICISM

One Code Authority Asked To Supply Information on Incomes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(UP)—The NRA is exercising a new vigilance over the budgets of code authorities in an effort to silence sharp criticism from scattered sections of the nation, it was learned tonight.

The drive for more economical code operations, it was reliably reported, likely will involve several individuals who are said to have added thousands of dollars to their yearly income through work on code bodies.

NRA officials professed tonight to know of no new efforts in this direction. The United Press learned, however, that a member of one code authority has been asked to supply information on the sources and amount of his income which is said to have been nearly tripled under the "New Deal."

Code authorities, it has been disclosed, have provided lucrative jobs for government workers who plodded along year after year barely one step ahead of the landlord, the grocer and the tailor. One department of commerce employee quite a $4,000 a year job to become associated with a code body at a reported salary of $8,000. Salaries paid by the retail grocery code authority have been subjected to constant and bitter criticism by a publication owned by Senator Arthur Capper, republican, Kansas. The publication takes the position that regardless of who makes the first outlay of funds to meet the code budget, the money eventually will be taken out of the pockets of the consumers through increased prices of the necessities of life.

Cheap Lenses Are Dearest

Unable to distinguish the difference in optical lenses by feeling the glass or looking at the polished surface, people are often influenced by cheap prices in buying lenses.

The most serious mistake one can possibly make for the eyes.

Of all things you may ever have occasion to buy, don't let price prevent you from having eyeglasses that are absolutely correct.

And the only sure way of knowing what the eyes require is to go to a dependable optometrist. Thus, you avoid all risk and obtain honest advice, as well as being quoted an honest price.

We make the examination and fit glasses, all at one cost.

POLITICS AVOIDED IN HITLER ORATION FOR HINDENBURG

wanted it, honestly and with his whole heart.

"Deputies of the German reichstag, men and women of the German people:

"In this consecrated hour I implore you all now to look beyond this transitory moment into the future.

Let the strong realization enter our hearts:

"The Herr Reichspräsident Field Marshal General von Hindenburg is not dead. He lives.

"For in dying he now moves above us . . . surrounded by the great spirits of the past, as an eternal patron and protection of the German reich and the German nation."

The ceremony today was in the Kroll opera house, still used for the reichstag while the building being repaired as a result of the fire there just before the nazis came to power.

The interior was decorated with black crepe and red evergreens.

Hitler Moved.

Hitler appeared deeply moved by the sentiments he expressed. His official demeanor was quiet except for an occasional dramatic gesture.

With great feeling and apparently with an eye to the plebiscite August 19 in which he is asking approval of his action in taking over executive functions, he referred to the "new resurrection" which we want to preserve as a precious hereditary treasure.

He referred reverently to "the unmeasurable service the field marshal general rendered historically by reconciling in his name the German reich's past with the passionately yearned-for better German future."

In the early portion of his speech Hitler traveled from the state capital to give an accurate report on the progress of the reconstruction of the Reichstag building.

The first time was in 1914 when he won his great victory over the Russians, in memory of which German erected the Tannenberg monument where he will be buried.

The second came in 1925 when he was first elected reichspräsident.

The speech Hitler again referred to the fact that he was asking for himself the title of reichspräsident which von Hindenburg bore.

VON HINDENBURG SETS OUT ON HIS FINAL JOURNEY

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 6.—(AP) Chancellor Hitler, Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier; Colonel Oskar von Hindenburg and military leaders who had attended the memorial service for the late President Paul von Hindenburg at Berlin, arrived at Marienburg here in three airplanes tonight, and saluted silently and then Goering returned to Neudeck, where he placed a floral tribute from the German government on the coffin of the dead president.

The officials to whom full leadership of the reich passed arrived a short time before the start of a long procession from Neudeck to Tannenberg, his battlefield which will be the last resting place of the nation's military idol.

Stars shone in the sky after days of rainfall as the procession formed in front of Neudeck manor. It was an impressive spectacle.

A guard of honor consisting of three reichswacht divisions formed a wide circle around the house. Behind the soldiers stood virtually all the inhabitants of near-by towns and villages.

Flaring torchlight gleamed everywhere.

Members of the von Hindenburg family said their last farewell to the beloved president at Neudeck.

The Rev. Doernitz, pastor of the Holy Trinity church, in Berlin, which the president frequently attended, spoke a few comforting words.

Then the coffin was brought out and placed near two reichswacht flags. A band played the hymn "Jesus Meins Zuversicht."

At a sharp military command the soldiers removed their helmets and the Rev. Doernitz offered a prayer. It contained the familiar phrase, "and now we bid farewell to the master of this house." The bugles sounded a last tattoo.

A gun carriage drawn by six horses pulled up to the door. Six officers lifted the coffin, which was covered with black and white flags, onto the limber. The only sound to be heard was the soft rolling of drums.

Seven army cannons headed the procession and all members of the staff of the von Hindenburg family, carried the dead field marshal's baton, his decorations and other tokens of honor which had been bestowed upon him.

Immediately behind the gun carriage rode Colonel von Hindenburg, members of the family, high military officers and all members of the staff of the Neudeck estate. As the procession got under way the sweet refrain of "Jesus Meins Zuversicht" were heard again and many in the throng were weeping silently.

The first halt was made about a mile from the estate where many automobiles were waiting. The coffin was lowered to this point to a motor gun carriage.

There were lights in every cottage window as the nation's beloved leader passed on his way to Tannenberg, the national hero's battlefield, associated with that of von Hindenburg.

Chancellor Hitler did not accompany the procession. He and Goering planned to pass the night at Sanktendeburg.

Stationed along the road were army detachments which presented arms as the cortege proceeded.

Darkness yielded to the blaze of thousands of torches held aloft by statueque watchers on the 60-mile route winding through East Prussian fields where wheat and rye is being harvested.

Memories went back to those fateful days in 1914 when the Russian steamroller was threatening to devastate this flourishing countryside.

East Prussian farmers, who flocked by the thousands to the route traversed by the cortege, showed deep emotion at the passing of their "liberator" whose body will lie in the monument at Tannenberg which erected in memory of his victory over the invading forces.

Tomorrow morning a great crowd—predicted to number more than 200,000—will gather at Tannenberg for the national funeral at which Chancellor Hitler will deliver the oration.

After the services as many persons as possible will be given an opportunity to pass before the casket before it is finally laid away in a tower of the memorial.

planting next year. Current production has been estimated at approximately 100,000,000 pounds less than comparative demands.

Removal of the surplus, the aim of restriction, Hutson said, had been achieved to all "practical purposes."

The farm administration apparently has two things in mind for the future: Expanding the foreign market through reciprocal tariff agreements and broadening domestic consumption, perhaps by means of substantial reductions in the federal tobacco tax.

May Slash Levy.

Hutson recently suggested the levy might be slashed to a package of 15 cigarettes would sell for a nickel. Congress will decide whether that is to be done.

Some tobacco growers are hopeful the trade agreement now being negotiated with Cuba will contain clauses which will open the island market for more free-cured, used principally in the manufacture of cigars.

The administration, Hutson said, also is banking rather heavily on more free-cured, used principally in the manufacture of cigars.

Whether the Kerr-Smith tobacco act, which sets up a rigid compulsory crop control system, is to be used next year will be determined by the growers in a referendum to be held prior to March.

Flomington said he seemed little doubt that the farmers would vote in behalf of the act. He said it had more potential future value than it has for current use.

voters' office and investigate vice and gambling. If Mayor T. S. Walmesley's city forces win, Long and national union demonstrators will be jailed for contempt of court and troops will be dispersed.

The two forces will lock horns before Judge N. Bond, who issued a temporary injunction last week, ordering the troops to vacate the registrar's office. The order was denied. If Senator Long and Adjutant General Ray Flomington fail to appear in court, they will be in contempt. If they do appear, the city will ask contempt citations against them anyhow, for failing to disband the troops.

Cited for Contempt.

Lieutenant Numa Avendano, in charge of the troop detail at the registrar's office already has been cited for contempt. He must go to court Thursday to show cause why he should not be sentenced.

For the first time in many months, however, federal, state and city officials were agreed on one thing. None of them was going to take care of the city's 1,500 "unemployed." There are 15,000 such persons in the state—sick, aged, crippled folk, needy widows with children, those persons who are not able to work. The ERA has been passing them by but it quit this week because the Louisiana legislature failed to pass its relief appropriation at the session ending last month.

Mass Meeting.

This was the situation that brought the mass meeting of communists, the Marine Workers' Union, the League of Industrial Democracy and the Unemployed Council today. They gathered 2,000 strong in a park across the street from city hall, shouting "down with Huey Long," and "what's the matter with Walmesley?"

Troops in the Soule building, across a narrow side street from city hall. When the crowd gathered, Police Chief George Reyer rushed to the Soule building and informed Captain Benesch that the mayor had sent him to protect the militiamen and the Soule building, which is city property.

The military officer was glad to get police protection and promised to cooperate with his forces. A dozen policemen with tear gas, were lined up against the Soule building, their backs to the troops.

A delegation of the demonstrators visited Walmesley and asked for help for the unemployed. The mayor was courteous but said the city could not help.

the northwest states are expected to be guided to new places, he said.

Inspects Dam.

The president hastened on to inspect another of the federal projects late today through which he hopes to provide better opportunities for a movement of people from the congested districts—the Fort Peck power and reclamation dam on the upper Missouri.

The president throughout the all-day ride across northern Montana to Glasgow worked with his aids, principally the drouth expert, Westbrook, and Secretary of War Dern, who has charge of river developments. Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, left the special to continue his studies in the far west.

Two of the president's sons, James and Franklin, also left the train this morning to fly east by regular plane routes. John, the youngest son, continued on with the train.

ROOSEVELT WILL VIEW
DROUTH REGION TODAY

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., Aug. 6.—(AP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be afforded a first-hand glimpse of the havoc wrought by the drouth when he arrives here Tuesday.

He will pass by field of heat-seared grain and view the receding shore lines of Devils Lake on his trip of inspection of portions of the Missouri river diversion project.

The chief executive also is expected to experience the heat which has given North Dakota the hottest May and June in history, and the third hottest July, with the consequential serious general crop damage.

He will head the story of farm conditions from various experts who have been sent from the state capital to give an accurate report on the inroads of the aridity.

Corn crops burned irreparably by the blazing sun will be a part of the picture, and the need for water in the state will be explained in detail.

Representatives from South Dakota will join North Dakotans in describing the drouth situation to the president's aids. A committee of about 25 persons will comprise the two groups.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party are expected to head westward from the city on highways traversing ground over which the waters of Devils lake once flowed.

He will see the derelict vessel, Minnie H., which once carried mail, passengers, troop supplies and freight to Fort Totten and Minnewaukan.

The presidential special will arrive at 8 a. m.

The city today was bedecked in colorful decorations. Huge festoons and streamers with the president's photograph were strung across the streets. Colored bunting, flags and smaller flags adorned each business house.

The tour is expected to take two hours with the president stopping at several points en route to view the area.

President Roosevelt, expressing himself as deeply impressed by the magnitude of the $72,000,000 Fort Peck dam, said upon arrival tonight "we are going to make every ounce and every gallon of water that flows from the dam count for the benefit of the people of the United States."

The homeward-bound president, speaking to a large crowd of visitors and workers at the Fort Peck dam site, said the project here would also result in a "great amount of good for the elimination of unemployment."

Touching upon farming on lands not suited to agriculture, Mr. Roosevelt asserted the government was not contemplating making families leave their homes. He said he was planning to see them.

"It is a fact, however, you and I know," he said, "there are many families in many states who are trying to make a living on the soil without much success, because it has been shown over a period of years that the land they are using for agriculture ought not to be used for agriculture."

"Now if these families want to go on farming that land and going deeper into the red every year, I think that is their right. I think they have a right to use their own land. I think they have a right to use their own land. I think they have a right to use their own land."

ROOSEVELT LIKELY TO REVEAL PLANS
IN WISCONSIN TALK

Cutting, some of the independent probably will vote against the suggestion that they align themselves now or later with the democrats.

The support given by Postmaster General Farley to Joseph McKee in his race for mayor of New York put a damper for a time on talk of a democratic-liberal merger and since then some of the independents have revived their own plans.

Mr. Roosevelt believes the national administration should not seek to dictate to a state democracy its selection of senators and representatives in the party's state convention in September.

But the Wisconsin democrats have until the primaries on September 18 to select a candidate to oppose La Follette, and a compromise might not be reached.

In Minnesota, Representative Hoide, a personal and political friend of Mr. Roosevelt, has been nominated by the democrats to oppose Senator Shipstead. Hoide polled a large vote in the primaries.

Democrats in New Mexico want to put up their own candidate to oppose Senator Cutting. Representative Chavez, democratic leader who was a pre-convention Roosevelt man in 1932, is the probable nominee.

Republican leaders are as much interested in the situation as the democrats. They said if Mr. Roosevelt comes out in support of progressive republicans instead of democrats, they would be in a position to appeal to conservative democrats to support republicans in their second congressional campaign. They assert Mr. Roosevelt is trying to build a party that will retain the old line democrats, but one that also will envelop all the liberals.

Elks Will Maintain Patriotism Drive

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A campaign of "militant patriotism" will be initiated by the Elks lodge next Thursday when Michael F. Shannon, Elks national president, will leave for Chicago on a 10,000-mile airplane flight around the country.

Shannon will meet with district delegates of the lodge at Boston, Atlantic City, Asheville, N. C., Dallas, Texas, Omaha, Chicago, Denver, Portland, Ore., and San Francisco. At these gatherings he is to outline a plan for enlisting the nation's half million Elks in a drive against radical forces.

The airplane will be piloted by Colonel Roscoe Turner, noted speed flyer. Shannon asserted that the purpose of the "pro-American" campaign would be to inaugurate a "patriotic American youth element" to serve as a bulwark against attempts to destroy American institutions.

"We are not concerned about being anti-nazi, anti-fascist, anti-Utopia, our single policy is, pro-American," he said.

When Hitler Was One of Crowd

Twenty years makes a vast difference, as this picture proves. Made August 2, 1914, it shows Adolph Hitler (as in enlargement) in the crowd that jammed the square in Munich, cheering news that Germany had declared war on Russia. Twenty years later, to the day, Adolph Hitler became undisputed dictator of Germany.

Nudeist Film Enjoyed By Avondale Audience

Not much can be said in favor of the nudeist film, "Elysia," with respect to artistic photography and skillful direction. The picture is decidedly amateurish in dialogue and in scenic effects. But strangely enough the Monday night audience in the open-air theater near the Avondale swimming pool seemed to receive the picture, flaws included, with a wholehearted good humor, in striking contrast with the treatment accorded most amateurish attempts to entertain.

Perhaps that was because the picture is purely nudeist propaganda delivered with enough funny details to make a really first-rate comedy. To see a group of "sun-worshippers" seated periphrastically near a mass of brambles with nothing to protect them, or to watch a nudeist clad only in a wide-brimmed hat trying to pump up a flat tire on his Ford—seems like these hold something incongruous and utterly ridiculous.

But the philosophy of nudeism, as explained by a doctor to a young reporter whose first trip to a colony is the central thread of the plot, is given simply and directly. In fact, the whole picture is simple and direct. Probably no nudeist picture was ever so blessed with as shapely a group as that portrayed in the film. But that is, by the way. Nobody can expect film heroes and heroines to come to life off the screen in all their glory.

The film was made at a nudeist camp located somewhere between Hollywood and Albee Semple MacPherson's summer home—and the story was far purer than some that have come from both the other two places. Perhaps "Elysia" would seem a little silly in a regular theater with lights and rugs and doormen, but beneath the stars at Avondale the "back to nature" movement seemed entirely plausible.

The costumes consist of two pairs of trunks for the whole cast and might be compared with the average burlesque outfits, which really create a greater stir. The settings are idyllic, but lack the charm that good photography might have added. The plot is skimpy. But the audience seemed to take it all in quite good spite.

The bill is completed by a Manhattan travel-talk and a musical skit by four radio singers.

TRUCK LOAD LIQUOR WITH GEORGIA TAG NABBED IN RALEIGH

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 6.—Federal authorities today decided there was nothing they could do with a truck load of 116 cases of whiskey which a highway patrolman and Raleigh policemen seized yesterday but state officers planned to prosecute three men taken with the truck.

Warrants charging the three men with transporting liquor in violation of the state prohibition act, were served on them, Stenton Inascoe, prosecuting attorney of city court, said.

Bond of W. F. Mitchell, alleged to have been the driver of the truck, was set at $500, while those of his companions, Herbert Reid and Harry Faulkner, were set at $250 each. All three said they were from Augusta, Georgia.

"So far as I have been able to ascertain, there is nothing the federal government can do about the matter under federal laws respecting interstate commerce shipments," John Hall Manning, assistant United States district attorney, said. "The bill of lading seemed to be all right and a check of the contents of the car showed it did not have more than 116 cases as specified in the invoice. I also found that the federal tax had been paid on the liquor."

Under a reciprocity agreement with Georgia the only trucks from that state allowed to cross this state without a North Carolina license are those carrying furniture or the driver's own produce.

G. O. P. IN OKLAHOMA RAPS EXTRAVAGANCE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Oklahoma republicans rebuffed by an overwhelming vote today to condemn President Roosevelt's "New Deal" and phases of the NRA and AAA, but their state convention assembled what it called the national administration's waste of relief funds.

ROME VICTORIOUS
OVER AMERICANS
IN FINALS, 8 TO 0

Stansell Allows But Three Hits as Mates Hit Hard.

LUTHER WILLIAMS FIELD, MACON, Ga., Aug. 6.—Those ragged Romans, the same dirty-uniformed band of scrappers which eliminated Grant Park Aces, won the Georgia amateur baseball title here this afternoon, chalking up a convincing 8-to-0 triumph over Americans in the finals. American, obviously exhausted after beating Macon, 3-2, only a few minutes before, never threatened. Only once did they get a player beyond second base.

Gilmore Stansell, lanky portside pitcher, allowed but three hits, while his Roman mates were pounding Billy Boyd and Bill Kirksey for 10 safe blows, including a long triple by Leon Culberson in the fifth with two runners aboard the bases.

ROMEANS LEAD. Rome jumped into a one-run lead without ado in the opening inning. Player walked, was sacrificed to second and crossed the rubber on Culberson's single to right. In every inning thereafter except the third and eighth, they made serious bids. Two singles and Culberson's triple accounted for another pair of runs in the fifth and a four-run blast in the sixth settled the game, completely demoralizing the spent American outfit.

Rome will represent Georgia in the regional tournament next week in Atlanta. Unless the protest filed by Macon this afternoon is allowed, the decision will be rendered tomorrow in Atlanta and if allowed a game between Macon and Rome will be played there just prior to the regional tourney opening on Sunday.

Macon's spirited rally in the eighth and ninth innings fell just two runs short of victory and the fast-fielding American team battered out a hard-earned 3-to-2 decision over the local Bulldogs.

MAON PROTESTS. Coach Lem Clark, of the Macon club, however, had filed a protest before the game began, questioning the eligibility of a single American player.

Griffin, first declared ineligible last Friday night but reinstated Sunday, was again ruled out this morning and immediately protested against American players, all of them in general.

Though American went on with the game with Rome, the exact status of the situation could not be ascertained. All protests will be referred to the state league athletic board commander and evidence will be reviewed and a decision rendered tomorrow in Atlanta.

Americus collected eight hits off Clarence Welch and earned only two of her runs.

The other was made on a wild pitch after Kirksey had left with a triple, starting the fourth frame. Macon earned both her runs.

The muddled situation this morning was something which was referred to by Griffin took the field shortly before 10 o'clock for infield practice.

The entire Rome team banded together with American players, who were in uniform ready to play, and some 25 Macon rooters. This miniature mob took over the Griffin side of the grandstand and started to work.

HOOPS HISS. They howled and hissed and belabored the wooden seats from frame-work with heavy wooden sticks. Some brought forth the canisters of rocks, which added to a deafening din that rose and fell each time a Griffin fielder muffed a ball.

A few minutes later Lem Clark led his Macon Buddies out on the field and the stands roared approval. Abruptly, without tossing a single ball, Coach Clark ordered his team off the field. He refused to play the game, demanding that final official decision must come from the state athletic department in Atlanta.

Word was received some time later that Dr. R. C. Eves was en route here but would not arrive until this afternoon. The crowd lingered for perhaps half an hour, milling around the stands still razzing the Griffin "grandfathers."

Clark received a telegram from Eves that Griffin had been declared ineligible, that American would play Macon, the winner to encounter Rome for the title, and that no further protests by any of the three teams would be heard.

Soon afterwards, Quimby Melton, "steppfather" of the Griffin team, announced he would appeal to the State Camp, R. of Newman, state commander. Macon's protest, despite Dr. Eves' statement, likely will be heard at that time, also.

BREAK
O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

Turkey Gobbler Land---and One More Legend Draws Near

When winter comes Thomas C. Chubb quits his summer home at Old Saybrook, Conn., and comes to Georgia and his winter home at Thomasville.

There he gets his pointers ready for the field trials at Albany. Two years ago he had a pointer which finished as one of the winners in the derby. Unlike most dog owners, Chubb is a real amateur, handling and training his own dogs.

Chubb is a poet of distinction, and a writer of prose with several volumes published. His poetry is especially enchanting. Most of it concerns the sea and the soil and the people thereof.

Yesterday arrived a letter from Old Saybrook with a volume of Poetry, a magazine of verse. It contains one of his poems, written with a south Georgia setting. It is a distinctive poem and is reproduced here with the permission of Poetry:

TURKEY GOBBLER LAND.
Down in the south, where cornfields stand in rows
Of blond stiff spears against a parched brown earth;
Where the tall pine trees smell of turpentine,
And iridescent doves flash back and forth
Over the fields of benne in great droves;
Where the old soaring buzzards wheel and slant
Interminably as the flight of time;
Where cotton blossoms pink, and blooms soft white,
And on the coldest day the noontime sun
Is hot enough to warm you to the bone,
Is Turkey Gobbler Land. Not in the fields—
Though sometimes just at dawn he does come out
To feast on hog-threshed corn or chufa roots—
But in the deepest shadows of the woods
Where even a four-month drouth leaves freshness still,
And the closed gentian robs some of the sky's hue,
Old Turkey Gobbler dwells. That is his home.
That is the only place the relentless march
Of tin-pan towns, paved roads, and all the shabby
Efficient progress toward an unknown goal,
Has left the American bird. So in that place,
He struts and spreads his fan and swells his throat
Of dull-brilliant slaty blue. There he makes love.
And fights, and has his kingdom. Notice him.
For one day he may join the buffalo,
And the sky-darkening flights of passenger pigeons,
And the lithe redskins with his lynx-south trail,
And the great forests of a million square miles,
And there will be one legend to be added
To our large store that all read just the same.

They are great birds, the turkey gobblers of the wild places of Georgia. And just lying in wait for him is a thrill. I recall last winter at Dover Hall, the game preserve of Wilbert Robinson and Colonel Tillinghast Huston, going out in the darkness of a cold morning. And lying for hours in a blind while the forest awoke and the sun came up over the tall minarets of the forest. But he never came that morning. They have driven him to the deep recesses of the forests. But Turkey Gobbler Land is an enchanting place. And the poem catches the spirit of the land.

A FEW NOTES ON SALMON FISHING.

"Apparently dog training is not going to be the only thing to keep me from doing the work I ought to do," writes Chubb, "for I just succumbed to the temptations of a salmon fishing trip in the Gaspé peninsula, Quebec. We had a wonderful time and plenty of luck. I got 22 salmon in all—the largest being 33 pounds and quite a handful on a rod and reel. Besides that, I got eight prosperous trout ranging from two to four pounds.

"Most of the luck came in one day when I got 10 salmon ranging from 26 to 8 pounds and totaling 167 pounds. That being the river limit, I could do no more. If I have any luck with my pictures of these, I am going to send you copies if only to tantalize you.

"We have had a good summer, broken only by one piece of bad luck. Spider (the winner at Albany) broke loose one evening and we did not locate him until the next morning. During the interval he had succeeded in getting run over by an automobile which broke his left front leg.

"The vet says he will be all right even for the trials, but he still carries a limp and of course only time will tell."

Mrs. Chubb, who also is a writer, attends the trials and handles some of the dogs in them. They are both enthusiastic Georgians in their winter home and a distinct addition to the galleries at the Albany trials.

HELP FOR CRACKERS.

Pitching with an injured foot which pained him every time he stepped from the rubber, Dutch Schmidt, the Crackers' leading pitcher, was quite naturally unable to stop the losing streak at New Orleans.

He lacked, too, the steady influence of the veteran Joe Palmisano, out with an injured arm. The Crackers officials are making every effort to obtain some help to put the club back into the first division once more and should succeed.

Meanwhile the slump of the club is easily explained. And even with a crippled team they have managed to score runs and make a contest of each game.

I could never fathom the attitude of deserting one's home club when an honest, and successful, effort has been made to put a team in the race. There are seven others in the same situation. If I cannot boost I will not knock. Nor would personalities, did any exist, influence any unmerited criticism of any sporting effort.

This year's team has drawn more than 150,000 fans and will draw close to 200,000 before the season is done. Which is the answer to whether the team was an interesting one or not. The present slump, while unfortunate, will not last for the remainder of the season.

A SPLENDID PROGRAM IN JEOPARDY.

The American Legion's sandlot baseball program, a most commendable and worthy one, is in desperate straits. Impelled by the desire to win some boys have been permitted to use untrue affidavits as to birth records so that each tournament has seen ineligible teams dismissed.

It is a challenge to the various Legion posts to enact adequate supervision of the teams they sponsor. And it would be an improvement were the national committee to remove the adult coach and turn the entire competition over to the boys. The various posts should supervise records and supply equipment. There is no need for an adult as manager or coach.

The hedge-podge of charges and counter-charges of ineligibility in the finals of the state tournament at Macon marred and otherwise splendid event. Three or four ineligible boys have been permitted to mar the entire tournament. The responsibility goes back to the sponsoring posts which permitted teams to go to the state finals without adequate investigation.

PELS ARE NEXT
FOR PELS; PLAY
5-GAME SERIES

Meeting To Go Long Way Toward Settling Pennant Race.

By Dillon Graham.

A series that may go a long way toward deciding the Southern association second-half baseball championship starts Tuesday in New Orleans as the league-leading Pelicans take on the Nashville Volunteers for a five-game stretch.

Larry Gilbert's Pelicans, winning 11 of their last 14 games through Sunday, held a six-game lead over the field. Last week they took eight out of nine, scored more runs, collected more base hits and slammed out more home runs than any other outfit.

Nashville, the first-half winner, could do no better than split even in its last 10 games, while Memphis, another contender, was winning but four out of 13. Chattanooga, projected into the top flight since Mule Shirely became manager, has won 10 out of its last 12 games, through Sunday, and were in second place Monday.

The Pelicans showed their strength by taking four of five with Memphis and winning four straight from the faltering Atlanta Crackers, climaxing the streak with a double-header win Sunday.

If the Pelicans' victory march continues through the Nashville series, New Orleans will be so far out in front that a second-half win would be almost a certainty. Should Nashville win three out of five it would trim New Orleans' lead somewhat, but at the same time Chattanooga and Memphis, the other first division clubs, are battling each other and unless one or the other sweeps the series, any defeats suffered by New Orleans may not be so costly to the Pels.

Winning the southern amateur golf championship apparently has given Fred Haas Jr., of New Orleans, some much needed confidence in his own ability.

He was rated a very good player a year ago, but the southern victory has made him a more formidable contender. Since his Dixie triumph in June, Haas has set new course records at the Colonial and Audubon clubs in New Orleans. He shot a 65 at Colonial and a 64 at Audubon, both tough layouts.

In his recent round over Audubon, Haas had three birdies and six pars on the out nine, but coming in he made three mistakes—shot short of a green, put another ball into a trap and finally three-putted on one hole—and each error cost him a stroke. Still he managed to finish with the 64 record.

If his game holds up Haas will be a contender for the south in the national amateur championship next month, along with Charles Yates, of Memphis, the intercollegiate champion, and others.

BOB O'FARRELL
SIGNED BY CUBS

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs today announced the signing of Bob O'Farrell, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and the unconditional release of Catcher Benny Tate. O'Farrell will replace Tate as reserve catcher.

The Cub uniform will be no novelty for O'Farrell, for he was the north-siders' regular catcher from 1918 to 1925. He broke into major league baseball with Chicago in 1915, when he went out for experience a couple of times.

He went with Grover Cleveland Alexander to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1925, and in 1927 joined the Red Sox. He was traded to the New York Giants in 1928 and remained with them until 1932 when another swap sent him back to St. Louis. He was released last winter by St. Louis to manage Cincinnati.

Manager Charlie Grimm probably will put O'Farrell right to work tomorrow, as an injury to Gabby Hartnett's hand, suffered yesterday in a first game against the Reds, probably will keep him out of action for a few days.

Cleo Carlyle Sent To Newark Bears

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(P)—Cleo Carlyle, Hollywood center fielder, ended a six-year term with the Coast league and yesterday when he was traded to the Newark club of the International league in a four-way deal.

Fern Bell, a local boy who has been batting .470 for the Hollywood club of the Dixie league, will take Carlyle's place in the outfield. The New York Yankees, who purchased Bell for Hollywood, will get a flycatcher from Newark to handle the rest of the season.

Carlyle, a Georgian and a stellar player of past seasons, has been at bat with Bill Lane since the Hollywood club owner fined him for failing to show up for the final double-header last year. The player claimed he was sick but the fine stuck.

Two Champs See
Action This Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(P)—Two champions, Maxie Rosenbloom and Vince Dundee, keep boxing interest alive this week. Both appear in over-weight engagements that start a dull program.

Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight champion, meets Pietro Giorgio, of San Francisco, at Oakland, Cal., Wednesday night. The next night Dundee, middleweight king, will battle Tommy Rios, of Wilmington, Del., in another ten-round non-title match at Leiper ville, Pa.

COUGLI, MEADE
SWEEP RACES

By Orlo Robertson.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(P)—Dominating the New York racing program as few jockeys have this year, Silvio Cougli and Don Meade swept the card at Saratoga today, each riding three winners.

Cougli, contract rider for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, put together his triple with H. Oliver's Fidelis, the B. B. stable's General Farley and Mrs. Henry Ughetta's Deduce, winner of the Burn Hills handicap. General Farley and Deduce were two 7-to-2 shots, while Fidelis was well back at 13 to 5.

Meade led the field home in the second with E. R. Bradley's Bird Flower at 12 to 1, won the third with R. L. Gerry's Chancing at 2 to 1, and accounted for the closing event, a head of the money this year, in a spectacular race. The gelded son of Lucille, which once ran in cheap claiming races, came with a mighty stretch bid to win by a head from A. G. Vanderbilt's Red Wagon, the favorite making his second start of the year. Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Flying Hour was beaten a short half-length for the place.

Deduce, stepping the distance in 1:11 4/5 for the fastest time of the meeting, came around the outside on the bend and responding with fine courage just managed to pace the tiring Red Wagon in the final strides. The winner paid 7 to 2.

The honors at Narragansett were shared by the Wheatley stable's three-year-old Carry Over and Hal Price Headley's Kentucky-owned Fort Springs. Carry Over came through in the mile dash for three-year-olds, scoring by a length over C. V. Whitney's Lock while Fort Springs came from behind to take a neck decision from A. E. Silver's highly regarded Blackbird in a six-furlong sprint for two-year-olds.

Both Carry Over and Fort Springs were highly regarded, the former paying $12.50 and the latter $21.60.

Royal Gold from the barns of Dubs & Runnels, beat Frank Umbdenstock's Malolo by a scant head in the sixth and one-half-furlong race at Hawthorne. Malolo, the choice, jumped into an early lead but dropped back when a leg bandage came loose and dragged in the muddy going. He lost the bandage 50 yards from the finish but was unable to overhaul Royal Gold, which paid $24.80 for each $2 straight ticket.

An outsider also won the feature race at Detroit when Dancing Spirit from the Elmer stable and paying $15.00 closing with a rush to beat Charles T. Fisher's Debs Delight by a head. The race was run over fire and one-half furlongs in 1:06 3/5.

Chisox May Build
Atlanta Keystone

Marshall Mauldin, a product of the local sandlots who has been playing his first year in professional ball with the Lafayette (La.) club in the Evangeline league, has been purchased by the Chicago White Sox and ordered to report the latter part of this month. He will be tried at second base and should be able to make the grade. It will be the first all-Atlanta keystone combination to play in either of the big leagues, as Luke Appling is playing shortstop already. Mauldin is leading the Lafayette club in hitting with a .325 average.

Carnera Is Signed
For Buenos Aires Go

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Primo Carnera has been signed for a bout in Buenos Aires, October 20, his manager, Louis Sorei, said today. The former champion may meet Paulino Uscudun, of Spain, over whom Carnera holds two disputed decisions. Sorei said the former Argentine threat, Victorio Campolo, might be induced to be Carnera's opponent if Paulino continues to refuse to sign.

Atlanta Scores Lone Run in Fourth of Last Game.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 6.—Playing with the precision of a well-oiled machine, the Pelicans Monday afternoon at Heinemann park once more beat the Atlanta Crackers, winning by the score of 6 to 1 to make it five in a row over the Georgians. It was the eleventh victory for the Birds in their last 12 games.

Frank Ragland pitched for the Birds, hazing up his fourth success of the season with no defeat. He hasn't figured so much in the Pelicans' march to the front but apparently he has become tired of seeing other Pel hurlers parade their skill regularly and so he made his bid for this turn.

Ragland held the Crackers to one hit and that hit had nothing to do with the scoring of Atlanta's lone run. Notwithstanding a bit of wildness in walking two men in the fourth inning, Ragland should have scored a shutout. The Atlanta throw wild to center field to try to catch a man he had trapped off by yards. "Chick" Moore then made up for his error by knocking in the Pelicans' first run, a run that looked mighty big at the time because it put the locals in front by a run.

BIG CURVE. Ragland's big curve was breaking perfectly and though he walked four men, none of them was walked by balls that were very wide. Ragland's support had lots to do with his one-hit game. However, Roy Hughes, "Booie" Berger and Harley Ross turned in some remarkable plays and what left Ragland's steady defense at the Pelicans' infield in fact, the look like a solid stone wall to the Crackers. Berger handled 11 assists and two putouts and he and Hughes were raising almost from one foul line to the other.

Once or twice their pickups were so difficult they could recover to throw accurately. This was when Boss filed a throw that seemed to be in error of throws with the ease and nonchalance of a ticket-taker on the pay gate at Heinemann park.

Just three balls went through that Pelican infield. One was the clean single Chatham poked to center in the third inning; the other two were center field flies by Moore and Chatham. Boss made 21 putouts at first base, which alone will show you what an airtight defense Ragland had.

BERGER HOMERS. In addition, Berger hit a home run with a man on.

Bill Schmidt, Atlanta's big right-hander and ranked as the Crackers' best left, opposed Ragland, and, for three innings he seemed to be in form. But when the visitors broke the ice by scoring their run in the fourth inning, the Pels saw red. The first two Crackers up at bat were walked and when Autry whipped the ball to second to catch Eddie Moore off and the ball went to center-field, Ragland saw red. The next three men were easy infield outs and to make a long story short, 12 of the next 18 Crackers went out in the same manner.

Smooth and classy was the Pelican infield work that the Cracker attack looked pitiful and hopeless. In their fourth inning Eddie Rose led the Pels to an out, and he and the Crackers' goosie, Rose tripled, and later on, Boss, Hughes and Autry singled. A perfect butt by Ragland in the sixth inning brought in the fifth, with Rose on first base, "Booie" Berger smashed a long drive over the left field fence in the sixth, a scratch hit, a sacrifice and a home run by Jack Ward accounted for the sixth and last Pel run. They threatened to score in the seventh and again in the eighth but could not.

Wanta Hit Home Runs?
Get Beamed by Fast One

Lou Gehrig Has Been Slugging Maniac Ever Since He Was Popped on Noggin.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—If you see an ambitious young ball player deliberately trying to get his head in the way of somebody's fast one, don't send for the man with the butterfly net. The young fellow may only be seeking the secret of Lou Gehrig's phenomenal home run hitting spurt.

The burly iron man of the majors has 36 homers to his credit today, and he stands five days ahead of the pace Babe Ruth set in 1927 when he popped exactly 60 from various major league premises. Lou has hit six in the seven games of the Yankees' home stand at the stadium. Not content with homers alone, he has lifted his batting average 20 points to .383 in that short time.

Going back to June 29 for the possible cause of it all, Gehrig was parked peacefully at the plate in an exhibition game at Norfolk, Va., when Ray White, young right-hand farm hand of the Yanks, lost control of his hard high one. The ball bounced off Lou's durable skull and down he went for a long count.

Miss Mary Bird and Mr. Callahan Are Being Honored at Party Series

Miss Mary Jo Bird, daughter of Mrs. Renah Wilson Bird Sr., whose marriage to Frederick Stephen Callahan will be solemnized this month, is proving the inspiration for a number of social affairs. Mrs. George Warren entertains at a luncheon on Friday, August 10, at the East Lake Country Club with Miss Bird as the central figure. Covers will be placed for a group of close friends of the honor guest.

On Saturday, August 11, Miss Bird will be complimented at a luncheon to be given by Misses Maurice Gruber and Grace Gruber at the Wine-coff hotel, complimenting the fete bride-elect.

Covers will be placed for Misses Mary Jo Bird, Avis Brook, Virginia Whiteman; Mesdames Hugh Cate Ewin, of North Carolina; Walter Pangborn, Aurelia Coolidge, George Warren, John T. Brooke and the hostesses. Miss Evelyn Bird will entertain at a tea on Sunday honoring her sisters, Mrs. Hugh C. Ewin, of Morantown, N. C., and Miss Bird. Sharing honors with Mrs. Ewin and Miss Bird will be Mr. Callahan. The guests will assemble at the residence of Mrs. Bird on Sheridan drive between 5 and 7 o'clock to greet the attractive honor guests.

On Monday, August 13, her fellow employees of the Standard Oil Company will entertain at a dinner-dance at the East Lake Country Club, honoring Miss Bird and Mr. Callahan. R. E. Hodgson is making the arrangements for the entertainment and the guests will include 100 members of the social contingent. The guests will assemble at the club at 8:30 o'clock, where they will be received by Miss Bird and Mr. Callahan.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pangborn will entertain at a dinner party honoring Miss Bird and Mr. Callahan, the date to be announced. On Friday Miss Bird was honor guest at a luncheon given at the Tavern tea room by the young ladies on duty in the office of the Standard Oil Company. The guests were seated at one long table and an effective arrangement of gladioli and roses were placed in the center. Miss Louise Burch gave a reading and Miss Frances Forbes presented Miss Bird with a handsome silver vegetable dish as a gift from her co-workers.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

"A hundred dollars! Don't be a sap! I've spent nearer five hundred since you've been here—and all on pretties for you! Do you think I'm going to be left holding the bag for four hundred dollars?"

"No!" said Calissa, grimly. "But I'm afraid—Mr. Gordon!"

Myrtis' eyes widened, and a wave of color crept into her cheeks. She was angry, and startled, and a little uneasy.

"What do you mean by that?" she snapped, savagely.

"We both know, I'm sure!" Calissa, levelly. "I mean that all the clothes you bought for me and that I thought were covered by Mr. Gordon's advance—were charged to Mr. Gordon!"

For a moment she and Myrtis stared at each other, the drawn sword of enmity between them. And then Myrtis, as though she knew that any further disclosures must be dangerous, sought to "cover up."

"Well, suppose they were? It's good business for Mr. Gordon to have good-looking girls, smartly dressed in his office, and when you came in looking like something from 'Way Down East' in a third-rate cab show, and I tipped off Gordon, he told me to buy you some things—and they've made you look almost human!" she said, sullenly.

"And—how am I to pay for them?" suggested Calissa, mildly, but with a gleam in her eyes that Myrtis saw and respected.

"Don't be alarmed!" she sneered. "Little girls are as safe here as in Stanley Mills. You are supposed to pay for them at the rate of a few bucks deducted from your salary each week! That's all!"

"Then, unless I go to work pretty soon, these clothes will be worn out before I have them paid for! And I'll have to owe Mr. Gordon for more—so I think I'd better see if I can't find a job somewhere else!" said Calissa quietly.

"You're to work for Gordon, and nobody else!" snapped Myrtis, angry at Calissa's insinuation. "Gee whiz, I never saw a girl so determined to work!"

"Perhaps you never saw a girl so determined to get out of debt," said Calissa. "If Mr. Gordon isn't ready for me, I'll have to find something somewhere else, or go back to Stanley Mills!"

Myrtis glared at her, got up, walked to the telephone, dialed a number, and a moment later, said, crisply, "Mr. Gordon, sister, and make it snappy! Sure it's a personal call, on personal business!"

A moment later, she spoke again, shortly. "Say, Bob, this dame is doing me screws—she's here—oh, all right—Mr. Gordon! She wants to go to work and insists if she can't start in at your office in the morning, she'll go back to Stanley Mills! ... Sure she means it—and how!"

She put down the telephone, and turned to Calissa.

"All right, you go to work in the morning—at 9! You're going to assist Barker—gosh, that ought to be good! I'd like to see you and that little bellcat together at the same desk!" she said sardonically.

"I hope you'll enjoy it—you will see it, of course—you are working in the same office, aren't you?" asked Calissa, mildly.

Myrtis glared at her. "Oh, sure I am—but I told you I was on my vacation, didn't I?"

"Oh, I believe you did. Then you'll begin next week, and by that time Miss Barker and I ought to be getting along nicely!"

She turned and walked out of the room before Myrtis could answer, and in her own room she told herself, grimly, that she would have to watch Myrtis, for from this moment on Myrtis was her sworn enemy, and the sooner she could get out of this apartment into a place of her own, no matter how small and cheap and dingy it might be, the better.

She rose early the next morning, bathed and dressed in one of the new and vastly becoming street dresses, got herself a cup of coffee in the kitchenette, and hurried out into the bright morning sunlight. She had plenty of time, so she decided to walk.

She reached the office a minute or so before 9, and found it filled with men and women, boys and girls going swiftly, settling themselves for the day's work. Calissa hesitated a moment and an observant young man with an eye for beauty came to the railing and watched her as she came from the waiting room.

"Was there someone you wanted to see?" he asked, pleasantly.

"Yes—but I'm not quite sure who to see. I'm going to work here," Calissa told him, smiling. "I think I'm going to be an assistant to Miss Barker—that's what Mr. Gordon told Miss Lawrence."

The young man stared; his jaw dropped. He clasped one hand to his forehead, dramatically, and turned to face the others, who by now were listening.

"Did you get it?" he demanded, melodramatically. "She says Gordon told her to separate and stand up to assist Barker! Oh, my sainted aunt!"

And as the office force roared with merriment, Calissa looked on, amazed and distinctly resentful, completely bewildered by their unexplained mirth.

Calissa, engrossed in the behavior of the half-dressed girls, the several men and the office boy, did not hear the door close behind Barker as she came in.

Barker stood in the doorway for a moment, staring at the laughing clerks, and then she asked, "What's the joke? Hello, everybody!"

Instantly the laughter was subdued, and the young clerk who had first spoken to Calissa came forward, his eyes dancing with suppressed mirth.

"Miss Barker, this is Miss Logan, who is to be your new assistant!" he introduced Calissa.

Barker—every one seemed to call her that—started, and a faint flush touched her cheeks. Her eyes, behind the distorting, unbecoming spectacles with their heavy frames, widened and filled with a look of enmity.

"Good morning, Miss Barker!" said Calissa, pleasantly, but guardedly. If there was going to be trouble—and she felt a premonition that there was going to be—she might as well be prepared for it.

But Barker did not speak. Instead, her eyes roved over Calissa's smart and becoming frock, the trim little hat, the black patent leather slippers and thin chiffon stockings.

"Oh—so you're going to be my assistant, eh? And who told you I needed an assistant?" demanded Barker, unpleasantly.

Calissa's eyes chilled, and her head lifted a little. But she spoke quietly, with just the barest edge to her voice.

"Mr. Gordon seems to think so!" she said. "He told me to report for work this morning!"

Barker drew a short, hard breath, and her eyes snapped. "Oh—he did, did he? I'm surprised—I didn't know women of your kind ever worked!" she sneered.

Calissa's color mounted a little, but

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FROM LOG TO OCEAN LINER.

Sixty-eight years ago a 16,000-mile race took place! The rivals were British "clipper ships," or "clippers," which were taking tea from China to Great Britain. There was no steam engine on board any of them; all had to depend on the wind—but they were fitted with many sails and could make fine use of the force which moving air could give them.

The time taken was 99 days, meaning an average speed of a little more than 160 miles per day. By modern standards, that was not very fast; but it was a great thing for sailing vessels to do on such a long journey.

Faster records were made for shorter distances. The Red Jacket sailed from New York to Liverpool in 13 days and one hour, and the James Baines passed from Boston Light to Rock Light, Liverpool, in 12 days and six hours.

Credit for the first use of clipper ships is given to Americans, who launched some of them more than a century ago. During the California gold rush 160 clippers were launched in four years to carry gold seekers from the eastern United States around Cape Horn to California. The finding of gold in Australia led British firms to build a great number of new clippers, enough to transport 400,000 persons to the island continent.

Clipper ships were built with long, sharp bows and often had slanting masts. Some of them still sail the sea; and along with other sailing vessels carry the name of "windjammers."

Seven wonders of the world! Do you know what they are? Would you like to know more about them? If so write to Uncle Ray to ask for his "Seven Wonders" leaflet which encloses a 3-cent stamped envelope addressed to yourself.

Lighten Your Skin Without Harmful Mercury

Many women, anxious over their complexion, resort to drastic treatments which result in harmful after-effects, while if they would only use Dr. Blair's Cream of Cucumbers, which contains no mercury or other harmful ingredients, they would quickly have a light, clear, soft, smooth skin without risk to the delicate, sensitive skin texture.

Dr. Blair's Cream of Cucumbers contains real essence of cucumber; is easily applied; takes the place of powder and one application lasts all day, as it will not rub, dust or blow off; it makes the skin radiantly beautiful; eliminates redness and coarseness caused by exposure; is excellent for chapped face and hands; ridges the face of blackheads and other tell-tale blemishes and eventually smooths out facial wrinkles.

Dr. Blair's Cream of Cucumbers is guaranteed not to grow hair, but all cosmetic counters, in white, flesh or brunette, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price. Cucumbers Co., Dept. 7, Lynchburg, Va. (adv.)

'Rejuvenated' Woman Breaks 3d Set of Teeth

BEAVERTON, Ontario, Aug. 6. (AP)—A fondness for candy has proved costly to Mrs. Mary Ann Elliott, 67-year-old Beaver-ton woman, who reported a remarkable rejuvenation a few months ago.

Last May Mrs. Elliott's friends said her hair suddenly began to darken and grow; her eyesight, which had nearly gone, improved, and a third set of teeth appeared.

Mrs. Elliott's sight is still improving, she said, but she lost the front teeth of her third set. They were somewhat soft and broke off when she bit a piece of hard candy. But Mrs. Elliott says she can eat anything.

Miss Arwood Weds Mr. Tanner, Athens, At Quiet Service

The marriage of Miss Walterette Arwood, of Atlanta, and Johnnie Bryson Tanner, of Athens, was solemnized on Sunday morning, August 5, at 9 o'clock, in the presence of the immediate families, at the home of the bridegroom's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Guy Hughes, on North Boulevard. The ring ceremony was performed by Dr. E. M. Altman. The home was attractively decorated and a program of nuptial music was rendered by Miss Mildred Bridges, a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride was becomingly gowned in navy blue sheer crepe, with white accessories, and wore a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart roses. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Odiah Perkinson and is a graduate of Girls' High school and Agnes Scott college, receiving her M. S. degree at the University of Georgia.

The bridegroom is a resident of Athens, and for six years he has been associated with the Dozier company, of that city.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Tanner left for a wedding tour through the New England states and Canada and upon their return they will make their home in Athens, Georgia.

Household Arts. By ALICE BROOKS.

CROCHETED SQUARE.

Pattern 5193.

Are you longing for a choice table cloth or a scarf? Well, stop longing right now and get out your crocheted needle and some cotton twine, for with very little effort you will have a lovely cloth all your own. All you do is make a square and another and another, and before you know it, you're ready to sew them together, throw them over the table and be delighted with the result. The pattern is a lovely one, just a large mesh filet crocheted with a few petal stitches to enhance the design. The contrast of the open meshes and the solid pattern makes a striking design.

In Pattern 5193 you will find detailed instructions for making the squares and joining it to make a variety of lovely accessories; illustration of the joined squares and of all stitches used; and material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents

MARKED VARIANCE FROM STREAMLINE IN PARIS STYLES

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The bourgeois silhouette for evening wear, the first serious variance from the streamline profile which has been the dressmakers' darling this season, was displayed today by Mainbocher in one of the final openings.

A sinister tendency toward fullness noticeable in black wool coats and three-quarter length suit jackets which had a belted front and a very full swinging back to the hemline. The streamline effect returned to some frocks, however, which were of slender black wool accented with colorful waist tie belts on stream of fire roses down the front bodice.

The highest hats that Paris has seen in 1934 were launched by Marcel Boussac, who with wool duffel coats, they were black felt cockshells, eight inches high on one side, six inches on the other. Also bright felt and pillbox toques were featured, taking whiffs to the hemline. They were black and white, with blue, grey and black outfits, with combining skirt and loose-backed three-quarter coat or frock with a hip cape or furred blouse and astrakhan.

Fabric corset belts six inches wide with laced leather fastening graced several frocks which were closed by strikingly colorful and striped capes. They were black felt cockshells, eight inches high on one side, six inches on the other. Also bright felt and pillbox toques were featured, taking whiffs to the hemline. They were black and white, with blue, grey and black outfits, with combining skirt and loose-backed three-quarter coat or frock with a hip cape or furred blouse and astrakhan.

One typical costume was of grey wool with a scarf and striped capes. They were black felt cockshells, eight inches high on one side, six inches on the other. Also bright felt and pillbox toques were featured, taking whiffs to the hemline. They were black and white, with blue, grey and black outfits, with combining skirt and loose-backed three-quarter coat or frock with a hip cape or furred blouse and astrakhan.

Al Smith Takes Fight On Charter to People

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith carried his fight for charter reform to the people tonight. The former governor, in the first pronouncement on reformation of New York city's government since he resigned from the charter commission chairmanship last week, declared in a radio address: "The people I couldn't get along with were the stowaways who were put on board with monkey wrenches to throw into the machinery and scuttle the ship."

"The best thing the present charter commission can do," the 1928 presidential candidate of the democrats declared, "is to wind up and go out of business because its performance has not entitled it to public confidence. What we need is a small group of men who do not necessarily think alike on every problem but who will approach the task of drafting a city constitution in a serious and dignified way."

Smith handed in his resignation after the majority of the commission turned down his demand and that of Samuel Seabury that the system of borough governments, under borough presidents, be eliminated.

CUBA LAUNCHES DRIVE AGAINST RUM RUNNERS

HAVANA, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Ten airplanes, equipped with bombs, and seven warships are engaged today in a drive by the Cuban government against rum-runners.

Colonel Fulgencio Batista, commander-in-chief of the army, ordered the campaign. He said he believed the rum-runners were taking advantage of the United States' return with arms and dynamite for Cuban revolutionaries.

Fulton Relief Rolls Show Small Decrease

For the first time during the 12-month history of the Fulton county relief office there was a decrease in the number of families on relief rolls during July, Miss Ada Barker, county relief administrator, said Monday in her monthly report to the mayor and the chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners.

There were 25,574 families on the rolls during the month as compared with 25,945 during June, Miss Barker reported. Of the total, slightly more than half, or 12,912 families, were negroes, Miss Barker said.

Relief expenditures in the county for the month totaled $487,094. White families got an average of $21.90 each for the month and negro families averaged $12.90, the report said.

100 Killed in Algiers In Jew-Moslem Riot

CONSTANTINE, Algiers, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Senegalese troops were holding Constantine and the nearby port of Philippeville under virtual martial law tonight because of a religious war between Arabs and Jews, which cost at least 100 lives and left an estimated 300 persons wounded.

Calm was restored tonight, with soldiers patrolling the streets and all traffic prohibited after 8 p. m. All cafes were closed.

The majority of those killed and injured were said to have been Jews. Every store in the Jewish quarter was sacked, and some, along with some residences, were destroyed.

One Jew was dragged from a motor bus and killed on the spot. The trouble, long smoldering, broke out Friday night, and swept quickly through Constantine to Philippeville. The beating of a Jewish quarter after he had allegedly desecrated a mosque, started the fight, and Moslems attacked the Jewish quarter fiercely.

POLICE NIP GANG'S PLOT TO DYNAMITE HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A plot to blow up the Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, hospital to kill a woman patient was attributed today to the "Iris" gang, recently smashed by police.

Police said that conspiracy was thwarted just in time by moving the patient, Mrs. Elizabeth Fontaine, under heavy guard. Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, described her as a gunman's sweetheart who gave police information about the identity of the gang's members.

A stool pigeon informed the police that revengeful gangsters planned to dynamite the hospital, possibly killing many patients. Mrs. Fontaine had been taken to the hospital after being wounded at Upper Darby.
